Custody Cases in the District of Columbia – A Primer

What is custody?

- Prior to 2002, there was no statutory definition of custody. In 2002, D.C. Code §16-914 was amended to include a definition of legal custody and physical custody:
 - (i) “Legal custody” means legal responsibility for a child. The term “legal custody” includes the right to make decisions regarding that child’s health, education, and general welfare, the right to access the child’s educational, medical, psychological, dental, or other records, and the right to speak with and obtain information regarding the child from school officials, health care providers, counselors, or other persons interacting with the child.
 - (ii) “Physical custody” means a child’s living arrangements. The term “physical custody” includes a child’s residency or visitation schedule.

See also Ysla v. Lopez 684 A.2d 775, 777 (D.C. 1996).

- The court may award sole legal custody, sole physical custody, joint legal custody, joint physical custody, or any other custody arrangement the court may determine is in the best interests of the child. See, e.g., D.C. Code §16-914.¹

The basics: law and procedure

- There is no single comprehensive “custody statute” in the D.C. Code. Many custody-related provisions are found in Title 16, Chapter 9 and were originally part of the Marriage and Divorce Act (§16-901 et seq.). In practice, the provisions that were part of the Marriage and Divorce Act have been applied to all custody proceedings between parents. See Ysla v. Lopez, 684 A.2d 775, 778 (D.C. 1996). In addition, the “Domestic Relations Laws Clarification Act of 2002” amended several of these provisions so that they more clearly apply not just to divorce proceedings but to any proceeding between parents in which custody is an issue.

The power of the court to adjudicate custody disputes between parents who are not married to each other stems from its general equitable powers. Ysla v. Lopez, 684 A.2d 775 (D.C. 1996).

¹ Constitutionally and by statute, there is no distinction between children born in wedlock and children born out of wedlock. See, e.g., D.C. Code §16-908. Parents of children born out of wedlock almost always have the same rights and duties as parents of children born in wedlock.

- Custody cases brought by third parties (non-parents) are governed by “The Safe and Stable Homes for Children and Youth Act of 2007,” D.C. Code §16-831.01 et seq. The statute addresses standing requirements, legal standard, burden of proof, and related issues.
- The Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, D.C. Code §16-4601.01 et seq., applies to all “custody determinations.” The UCCJEA addresses which state has jurisdiction over a custody case, as well as certain procedural requirements.²
- D.C. Code §13-423 governs “long-arm” jurisdiction (personal jurisdiction over individuals outside the District).
- The D.C. Superior Court Domestic Relations Rules apply to custody cases and divorce cases, as do the General Family Division Rules. In March 2008, the court adopted Administrative Order 08-03 which implemented a new case management plan for domestic relations cases (<http://www.dccourts.gov/dccourts/docs/08-03.pdf>). However, this plan is not followed rigorously. In addition, on December 31, 2014, the court issued Administrative Order 14-23, “Revised Case Management Plan for the Domestic Relations Branch.”
- Custody can be awarded through a complaint for divorce or a complaint for custody.³ The age of majority in D.C. is 18. D.C. Code §46-401. Thus, in a Family Court proceeding, custody can only be awarded in connection with a child under 18.
- Child support may be requested together with custody in the same case (if the court has jurisdiction pursuant to the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, D.C. Code §46-301.01 et seq.). D.C. Code §16-916.03. It is not required that child support be requested; if no request is made, the court will usually not inquire further or may advise the parties regarding the right to support and inquire on the record whether the custodial parent is or is not seeking support. Calculation of child support is governed by D.C. Code §16-916.01, known as the D.C. Child Support Guideline. It will usually be ordered that payment be made through the D.C. Child Support Clearinghouse, Child Support Services Division, Office of the Attorney General; wage-withholding will also be ordered when possible. See D.C. Code §46-201 et seq.

Although the age of majority is 18, the duty of the parent to support continues until the child is 21 if D.C. issues the original child support order. D.C. Code §46-101.

Child support orders can be modified. See D.C. Code §§16-919.01(o), 46-204.

² Jurisdictional defects under the UCCJEA may be waivable. Kenda v. Pleskovic, 39 A.3d 1249 (D.C. 2012).

³ Custody can also be awarded in a civil protection order proceeding (also known as a domestic violence or intrafamily offense case). D.C. Code §16-1001 et seq. However, orders issued in those cases are time-limited.

Starting the case

- Custody cases (and divorce cases) are filed and heard in the Domestic Relations Branch of the Family Court of D.C. Superior Court.⁴
- Actions for custody are initiated by the filing of a complaint. SCR-DR 3. A case number will be assigned to the case at the time of filing (e.g., 2013 DRB 1245).
- Complaints must be signed by the plaintiff and either notarized or signed under penalty of perjury using the language set forth in SCR-Dom.Rel. 2(b)(5). There are a few technical requirements related to the pleading; see D.C. Code §16-4601.9, SCR-Dom.Rel. 8.⁵ Information need only be provided to the best of the plaintiff's knowledge.
- All pleadings in Family Court cases are filed or processed through the Family Court Central Intake Center, Room JM-520 (open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.). In addition, the court maintains a database called Courtview which includes the case docket and into which most pleadings and orders are scanned. However, information about Domestic Relations Branch cases is not available on-line. Court files are kept in the Domestic Relations Clerk's Office, Room JM-300.
- Efiling through CaseFileExpress is mandatory in custody and divorce cases for parties with attorneys (except for case-initiating pleadings). If a party is efilings, that party will be eserved through CFX. Certain categories of litigants, such as pro se parties and attorneys at 501(c)(3) organizations, are not required to efile and non-efilers must be served non-electronically pursuant to the governing law.
- There is an $80 filing fee for complaints (and a $20 filing fee for motions). Parties can file a request for a fee waiver (application to proceed in forma pauperis) pursuant to D.C. Code §15-712 and SCR-Dom.Rel. 54-II. A form IFP application can be obtained at the Central Intake Center or on-line at <http://www.dcbbar.org/for-the-public/legal-resources/pro-se-pleadings.cfm>. The application must be accompanied by the complaint/pleading. Take the application directly to the office of Judge in Chambers, Room 4220, where it will typically be ruled on the same day, on the papers and without a hearing. If the request is granted, filing fees are waived. The order granting in forma pauperis status can be picked up from Judge in Chambers and the plaintiff can then proceed to file the complaint through the Central Intake Center.⁶

⁵ Practice pointer: At this time, the clerk's office will require that an address be listed on the complaint for each defendant. If the plaintiff does not have a current address, the last known address, however old, can be listed, with "(last known address)" included in the caption. In addition, in third-party custody cases, if a parent is deceased, the clerk's office typically wants that parent listed as a defendant, with "(deceased)" included in the caption.

- At the time the complaint is filed, the case will be assigned to one of several “DR-II” calendars. There is also a “DR-I” calendar for more complex cases to which a party can request that a case be certified. All proceedings in a case (initial hearing, status hearings, motions, trial) will be scheduled on the calendar to which the case is assigned, which means the case will be heard by one judge for as long as that judge is assigned to that calendar. Judges rotate periodically (assignments are usually at least a year and may be longer) but the case will remain on the same calendar.
- At the time the complaint is filed, the clerk will issue a summons for each defendant. At the time of filing, a date and time for the initial hearing in the case will also be scheduled. Plaintiff will receive a copy of the initial hearing notice and the court will mail it to the defendant.
- A motion for temporary (pendente lite) custody can be filed together with the complaint or after the complaint has been filed. A motion styled as an emergency motion will be presented to a judge the same day, who will decide what action to take.

Service of complaint

- D.C. Code §16-4602.5 and D.C. Code §16-914(b) address who must be given notice of a custody proceeding.
- Each defendant must be served with a summons and a copy of the complaint. At the time the complaint is filed, the clerk will issue a summons for each defendant. The plaintiff is responsible for effecting service.
- Service is governed by SCR-Dom.Rel. 4.
- How to serve: See SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(c). Service can be effected by:
 - personal delivery (by any person over the age of 18 who is not a party to the action) to the defendant, or by leaving the summons and complaint at the defendant’s dwelling house or usual place of abode with a person of suitable age and discretion then living there

⁶ An IFP motion can also be filed by either party at any time during the case. The order is prospective; filing fees already paid will not be refunded.

- certified mail, return receipt (signed by the defendant, or by a person of suitable age and discretion living at the individual's dwelling house or usual place of abode)
- Time period for service: See SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(l).
 - initial 60 day period; may be extended once through the clerk prior to expiration of the 60 days (at the Central Intake Center), then may be extended on motion
- Proof of service: an affidavit of service must be filed. See SCR-Dom.Rel. 4.
 - If personally served, the affidavit must be signed by the process server
 - If mailed, the affidavit should be signed by whoever did the mailing (usually the attorney or pro se party) with signed return receipt (green card) attached
- Long-arm jurisdiction (personal jurisdiction over and service on an individual outside of the District): D.C. Code §§ 13-423, -424; 13-431 et seq.

What if the defendant cannot be found?

The Superior Court Domestic Relations judges interpret the constructive service statutes and court rules to mean that posting is not available in custody matters. See D.C. Code § 13-336 et seq.; D.C. Code § 13-340(a); SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(f), (g). Those judges are ordering publication at a cost even when clients have been granted In Forma Pauperis (IFP) status and therefore do not have to pay court filing fees. Typically, in a case with domestic parties, the fee for publication is approximately $110.00. If this issue arises in your case, please contact a mentor at Children's Law Center. Children's Law Center is working with the court and the city council to amend the constructive service statute to allow for posting and is hopeful that the statute will be amended in early 2016.

Plaintiff must file a motion requesting approval for constructive service. The statutory language requires a showing by affidavit that the defendant is a non-resident or has been absent from the District for at least six months. A showing of inability to locate the defendant may satisfy some judges (sometime known as a "diligent search"), but others may require some indication of non-residence/absence from the District for at least six months.

The motion must be supported by an appropriate affidavit. See Cruz v. Sarmiento, 737 A.2d 1021 (D.C. 1999); Bearstop v. Bearstop, 377 A.2d 405 (D.C. 1977). The law is not specific regarding what must be done. The judge will usually want to see "generic" efforts to locate the defendant (e.g., checking last known addresses, telephone directories, criminal court case records, D.C. Jail, and the federal Bureau of Prisons) and also any case-specific efforts that can be made (e.g., checking with known family members, providing an explanation as to why you can't find the person). See the form pro se motion for publication/posting and "absent parent worksheet" at <http://www.dcbbar.org/for-the-public/legal-resources/pro-se-pleadings.cfm>.

If a motion to publish notice is granted, the plaintiff is responsible for making arrangements for publication. The judge will usually provide the required notice (signed by the judge) together with the order granting the motion; if not, you can submit that proposed notice to the judge. The current practice of the court is to order publication in two newspapers, one of which is the Daily Washington Law Reporter (DWLR), and the other a newspaper of general circulation selected by the plaintiff (although sometimes just the DWLR is ordered and this is sufficient). The newspapers should mail you an appropriate affidavit of service which you then must file. If a motion to post notice was granted, the Domestic Relations Clerk's office will post notice in the Domestic Relations Clerk's office, Room JM-300. This will be done automatically but it is always prudent to confirm that the notice has been posted by sending someone to the clerk's office or calling the clerk to check that it has been posted. If no responsive pleading has been filed upon the expiration of the time period specified in the notice, plaintiff's counsel may file for default (see below).

What happens after the defendant has been served?

- The defendant has 20 days from the date of service within which to file an answer or responsive pleading. Answers must be notarized or signed under penalty of perjury using the language set forth in SCR-Dom.Rel. 2(b)(5).

What if the defendant has been served and no answer is filed?

- The plaintiff can request the entry of a default. SCR-Dom. Rel. 55. The Central Intake Center can provide a default forms packet (it is also on-line on the D.C. Bar website). Upon submission of the appropriate papers, the default will be entered by the clerk (without a hearing). The court can then proceed to make a final determination. Most judges will require a very brief presentation of evidence.

A defendant can move to set aside a default. SCR-Dom.Rel. 55.

Consents

- A defendant can sign a consent/consent answer. Consent answers can be filed with the complaint or later.
- Pursuant to SCR-Dom.Rel. 2, a consent answer can be signed under penalty of perjury without a notarization.
- Even when a case is by consent/uncontested, the court will usually require a very brief presentation of evidence before entering a custody order.

Updated November 2015

Settlement

- If the parties reach a settlement, the court must accept the settlement and enter a consent order unless it finds by clear and convincing evidence that the settlement is not in the best interests of the child. D.C. Code §§ 16-914(h), 16-806.
- Mediation is available at any time without cost through the court's Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Center.

Initial hearings, status hearings/subsequent proceedings; pre-trial and trial

- At the initial hearing, the judge will start to familiarize her/himself with the case and set further hearings (status or pre-trial or trial). The judge may also entertain oral motions for temporary relief.

In addition, two dates will usually be scheduled in connection with the court's Program for Agreement and Cooperation (PAC) in Contested Custody Cases program: the PAC seminar and mediation intake. The PAC program consists of one group parent education class (a children's class is held at the same time) and mediation. Under certain circumstances, the mediation requirement may be waived if there is a history of domestic violence.

- If the case is contested and does not settle, a trial will ultimately be held.
- Discovery and trials are governed by the Domestic Relations court rules and are comparable in most respects to civil trials generally. The judge may require the parties to submit a pre-trial statement.
- Parties may request or the court may sua sponte order a home study, a forensic custody evaluation, psychological evaluations of the parties and or child(ren). Home studies are performed by the Social Services Division of the court; forensic custody evaluations are typically done by the Assessment Center of the D.C. Department of Behavioral Health. There is no charge for these services.

A guardian ad litem for the child may also be appointed. D.C. Code §16-914(g), -918(b), SCR-Dom.Rel.101(e).

- D.C. is a common law evidence jurisdiction, although there are several D.C. Code provisions and Superior Court rules relating to evidence issues. See Graae and Fitzpatrick, Law of Evidence in the District of Columbia (4th edition) (LexisNexis).

- The legal standard is “best interests of the child.” See D.C. Code §§16-911 and 914 for a non-exclusive list of relevant factors that must be considered by the court. For the standard in third-party custody cases, see §§ 16-831.06 – 831.08.
- §§ 16-911 and 914 provide that in custody cases between parents (“proceedings under this chapter”), there is a rebuttable presumption that joint custody is in the best interest of the child or children, except when a judicial officer has found by a preponderance of the evidence that an intrafamily offense, child abuse, child neglect, or parental kidnapping (as defined) have taken place, in which case there is a rebuttable presumption that joint custody is not in the best interests of the child. See also §§16-807 and 808 (third-party cases). If the court finds that an intrafamily offense has been committed, any determination that custody or visitation is to be granted to the abusive parent shall be supported by written findings. See P.F. v. N.C., 953 A.2d 1107 (D.C. 2008).

Order

- The court must issue written findings of fact and conclusions of law. D.C. Code §16-911(6); SCR-Dom. Rel. 52.

Visitation

- Visitation arrangements and orders can range from “reasonable rights of visitation” to more explicit visitation plans (e.g. specific schedules, pick-up/drop-off arrangements, supervised visitation).
- Pursuant to D.C. Code § 16-914, if the court finds that an intrafamily offense has been committed, the court shall only award visitation if it finds that the child and custodial parent can be adequately protected from harm. See Wilkins v. Ferguson, 928 A.2d 655 (D.C. 2007).
- Visitation and child support are not conditional upon each other. Mohler v. Mohler, 302 A.2d 737 (D.C. 1973).
- The court operates a supervised visitation center that, upon order of the court, can be used for visits or as pick-up/drop-off location.
http://www.dccourts.gov/internet/public/aud_dvu/visitation.jsf

Modification

- Although the term “permanent custody” is frequently used, all custody orders are subject to modification. The basic standard for modification is “substantial and material change in circumstances” and in the best interests of the child. D.C. Code § 16-914(f).

Custody Case Overview

Case Initiation

File Application to Proceed In Forma Pauperis (IFP) directly with the Judge-in-Chambers (with complaint attached) or pay $80 filing fee.

File Custody Complaint (must be signed under penalty of perjury).

File Consent Answer(s) and Waiver of Service (signed by birth parent(s) if you have them) (file with complaint or whenever consents are secured).

The case will be assigned to a Domestic Relations (DR) judge by the clerk at the time of filing.

At the time of filing, the Central Intake Clerk will set an initial hearing date.

Service of Complaint - SCR-Dom. Rel 4(c)

Each defendant must be served with a summons (given to you by clerk at filing) and complaint.

The plaintiff is responsible for effecting service (personal, substitute, or by registered mail/return receipt) within 60 days (upon request may be extended once without leave of court).

Proof of service (affidavit of service) must be filed with the Court.

At the initial hearing, the court will schedule the parties to attend the Program for Agreement and Cooperation in Custody cases and Mediation.

What Happens After the Defendant Has Been Served?

Defendant(s) has 20 days from the date of service to file an answer (must be signed under penalty of perjury).

If no answer is filed, plaintiff files for the entry of a default (SCR- Dom. Rel. 55); then a final default custody hearing will be held (brief evidentiary hearing).

What if the Defendant Cannot Be Found and Served?

Plaintiff files a motion for constructive service (posting or publication) supported by an affidavit of diligent efforts to locate the defendants.

Once motion for constructive service is granted and notice is posted or published for the required time period and no responsive pleading is filed, plaintiff may file for default. (SCR-Dom.Rel.55).

Settlement or Trial

- Court must accept a settlement and enter a consent order for custody (unless not in child's best interest by clear and convincing evidence) (DC Code §§ 16-831.06(d)(1), 16-914(h)).
- Discovery (SCR-Dom. Rel. 26-37), home studies and forensic evaluations, pre-trial statements, trial (SCR-Dom. Rel. 38-53)
- Final order (in writing) (SCR-Dom. Rel. 52).
- Modification: "substantial and material change in circumstances" and "in the best interest of the child." (DC Code §§ 16-831.11(a), 16-914(f)(1)).

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
ADMINISTRATIVE ORDER 14-01

Practice Standards for Guardians ad Litem (GAL) in Custody and Related Consolidated Cases

WHEREAS, the Superior Court has authority under D.C. Code §§ 16-918(b) and 16-831.06(c), to appoint attorneys to act as guardians ad litem “to appear on behalf of the child and represent his [or her] best interests” in any proceeding “wherein the custody of a child is in question”; and

WHEREAS, D.C. Code § 11-1103 directs the Superior Court to adopt practice standards for all court-appointed attorneys in the Family Court; and

WHEREAS, the Family Court Domestic Relations GAL Standards Committee has developed Practice Standards for Guardians ad Litem in Custody and Related Consolidated Cases, in consultation with representatives from the bench, the bar and local community-based organizations that provide legal representation in Family Court; and

WHEREAS, the proposed Practice Standards are intended to apply to guardians ad litem who are court-appointed to represent and advocate for the child's best interests in custody and related consolidated cases involving domestic violence, the dissolution of a marriage, separation, and parentage proceedings, where issues of legal and/or physical custody/placement, parenting plans, access and/or visitation, and related issues involving child support and maintenance shall be adjudicated; and

WHEREAS, these standards do not apply to attorneys appointed as guardians ad litem for children in neglect proceedings under D.C. Code Title 16, Chapter 23, whose standards of practice were previously adopted through Administrative Order 13-06;

NOW, THEREFORE, it is by this Court,

ORDERED, that the attached Practice Standards for Guardians ad Litem in Custody and Related Consolidated Cases are adopted pursuant to this Administrative Order, shall take effect on the date of this order, and shall govern representation in custody and related consolidated cases as defined above; and it is further ORDERED, that this Order shall take effect on January 24, 2014.

SO ORDERED.

Superior Court of the District of Columbia

Practice Standards for Guardians ad Litem in Custody and Related Consolidated Cases

Pursuant to D.C. Code Sections 16-918(b) and 16-831.06(c), the court is permitted to appoint an attorney to act as a guardian ad litem "to appear on behalf of the child and represent his best interests" in any proceeding "wherein the custody of a child is in question."¹ D.C. Code Section 11-1103 directs the Superior Court to adopt practice standards for all court-appointed attorneys in the Family Court. The following practice standards shall apply, therefore, to guardians ad litem who are appointed by the court to represent and advocate for the child's best interests in custody and related consolidated cases involving domestic violence, the dissolution of a marriage, separation, and parentage proceedings, where issues of legal and/or physical custody/placement, parenting plans, access and/or visitation, and related issues involving child support and maintenance shall be adjudicated. These standards do not apply to attorneys appointed as guardians ad litem for children in neglect proceedings pursuant to D.C. Code Title 16, Chapter 23.

These standards reflect the unique role of the guardian ad litem and the imperative that the standards foster zealous, effective, and competent legal representation of the child's best interests.

I. Appointment of a Guardian ad Litem.

A. Cases Where Appointment is Appropriate. The court is not required to appoint a guardian ad litem but may, in the exercise of its discretion, appoint a guardian ad litem to advocate for the child's best interests in cases where the following condition or conditions exist:

1. One or both parties request the appointment;
2. There is a high level of conflict and acrimony between the parties or between a party(ies) and the child;
3. There is a reasonable basis to believe that there is undue parental influence or manipulation;
4. A child has substantial assets/trusts (property or income) and/or will inherit substantial assets; or is receiving Child Support, Temporary Assistance to Needy

Families (TANF), Supplemental Security Income (SSI), or Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI);

5. There are past or present allegations of neglect and/or abuse of the child or a sibling, or there is a past or pending case involving the neglect and/or abuse of the child or involving a sibling;
6. There are past or present allegations of domestic violence, or there is a past or pending domestic violence case, involving any party or involving a significant other, spouse or family member where substantive issues involving placement, supervision, interaction, and access are implicated;
7. There are present and/or past mental health and/or substance abuse issues involving the child, a sibling and/or a parent(s) or others with significant access or interaction with the child;
8. There are special needs, disabilities or medical conditions involving the child and/or parent(s) or others with significant access to the child;
9. There is a party, significant other, spouse, or family member with considerable interaction and/or access to the child who has a criminal conviction that may reasonably implicate the health, safety, and/or welfare of the child;
10. There is a plan to relocate that will have a substantial impact upon the child's placement, access to, and/or visitation with the child;
11. There are issues involving a change in access to the child;
12. The action involves a third-party complaint (family member or other) where one or both parents oppose the action;
13. The child is of a developmentally appropriate age with reasoned judgment and has voiced a consistent desire to participate in the subject proceedings or has otherwise expressed certain views and concerns;
14. The appointment shall facilitate the judge's ability to decide the case with full knowledge of and access to relevant and material information, which is necessary to a best interests analysis, as required by case law and pertinent statute;
15. There have been attempts to abduct the child or otherwise remove the child from the jurisdiction of the court, from the state, or from the country; and/or there is a history of actual parental kidnapping or removal of the child from the jurisdiction without the consent of a parent; and/or there is the present likelihood that attempts in that regard will be made; and/or
16. Any other reason that the court deems appropriate.

B. Qualifications for Appointment.

1. The lawyer appointed to serve as the guardian ad litem shall be a member in good standing of the District of Columbia Bar or authorized to practice law in the District of Columbia pursuant to D.C. Court of Appeals Rule 49, and otherwise satisfies the requirements for an appointment as set forth herein.
2. Prior to appearing as a guardian ad litem, the attorney shall receive the necessary training to provide competent representation, which includes familiarity with the following topics:
 - a. Relevant local and federal laws, court decisions and rules, administrative orders, and applicable legal standards;
 - b. The role of the guardian ad litem in custody cases;
 - c. District of Columbia Rules of Professional Conduct;
 - d. Evidence and court procedure;
 - e. Basic trial skills;
 - f. Information pertaining to recognizing, evaluating, and understanding evidence of child neglect and abuse;
 - g. Information regarding family dynamics and dysfunction, domestic violence, and substance abuse; and
 - h. Information on competence with regard to cultural, racial, ethnic, economic, or other differences among the guardian ad litem, parties, and the child.

As part of the training process, guardians ad litem shall be assigned as determined appropriate by the referring or sponsoring agency or organization to mentors or supervisors with family law experience who have represented parties in domestic relations cases. Guardians ad litem should seek the advice and input of these more experienced lawyers.

II. Appointment Order:

A. Provisions of Appointment Order.² The court shall issue a written order that:

1. Identifies the guardian ad litem and his or her contact information;
2. Specifies the nature, scope and duration of appointment;

² A form guardian ad litem appointment order is attached hereto, which is subject to revision at the discretion of the judge presiding over the instant case.

3. Authorizes access by the guardian ad litem to the child and, as appropriate to the case and consistent with the best interest of the child, to all significant persons and relevant environments, including but not limited to, the parent's home(s), other home(s) where the child has access and spends significant time, the school placement, academic providers, and a nanny or other childcare provider;
 4. Requires the parties to cooperate fully with the guardian ad litem, which cooperation shall include, but not be limited to, completing and signing release forms authorizing the guardian ad litem to obtain health care, education, and other information related to the child; providing the guardian ad litem with requested information; answering the guardian ad litem's questions truthfully; and making the child available to the guardian ad litem upon the receipt of reasonable notice, except where reasonable notice is not possible due to an emergency;
 5. Provides for payment by the parties for services rendered and expenses incurred by the guardian ad litem, if not provided by a pro bono attorney or by an attorney employed by a legal services organization or non-profit entity;
 6. For pro bono appointments, provides for the guardian ad litem to serve without compensation and without the payment of court costs, filing and other fees, and directs the clerk's office to furnish to the guardian ad litem free of charge a copy of all pertinent documents in the court's file in the instant case or any other case involving a party or the child;
 7. Provides for the guardian ad litem to obtain confidential court files upon appropriate waiver(s) and/or leave of court in accordance with court rules;
 8. Requires that whenever the guardian ad litem prepares a written report, it shall be submitted to chambers (not filed in the public case file) with copies served upon the parties; unless there is good cause, the report shall be submitted at least five business days before the next scheduled hearing or proceeding;
 9. Terminates the appointment 30 days after completion of the case ending in a judgment, adjudication, decree, or final order from which no appeal has been taken and the time allowed for an appeal has expired;
 10. Requires the parties to serve the guardian ad litem with all papers filed in the case; and
 11. Contains any other provisions as the court may determine appropriate, including provisions that a guardian ad litem may request the court to include.
- B. Contempt Powers. The court may enforce its orders under this subsection by use of its contempt powers.

- C. Continuation of Appointment Post-Judgment Proceedings. A guardian ad litem's appointment may be extended to authorize representation of the child's best interests in post-judgment proceedings, consistent with the guardian ad litem's assessment of the child's best interests and with the guardian ad litem's willingness to continue to serve.
- D. Appointment on Appeal. If notice of appeal has been entered, the guardian ad litem may seek an appointment on appeal, subject to any Rules of the D.C. Court of Appeals.

III. Role of the Guardian ad Litem.

- A. Attorney Appointed to Represent the Child's Best Interests. The guardian ad litem is an attorney appointed by the court to represent the child's best interests in domestic relations proceedings. The guardian ad litem shall represent the child's best interests at any hearing and during all stages of the proceedings, unless relieved, replaced, or the appointment terminates. The guardian ad litem shall function independently and is a full and active participant in the proceedings who shall investigate, assess, and evaluate the issues, and shall zealously advocate for the child's best interests. In determining what is in the child's best interests, the guardian ad litem should use objective criteria and avoid relying on personal life experiences or stereotypical views of individuals whose backgrounds differ from that of the guardian ad litem.
- B. Guardian ad Litem to Have Rights of a Party. Unless excluded by statute, rule, or case law, the guardian ad litem shall have certain rights of a party and fully participate in every court proceeding, at any stage, and shall receive court notice of the same. The guardian ad litem shall be authorized to: participate in pre-trial conferences, trial, mediations and negotiations; propound discovery; call witnesses; cross-examine witnesses; submit evidence; give an opening statement and closing argument; submit findings of fact and conclusions of law; preserve issues for appeal; file pleadings and motions; apply for protective orders; and take such actions during the pre-trial, trial and post-trial proceedings as are necessary to zealously advocate for the best interests of the child.
- C. Duties of the Guardian ad Litem. In fulfilling his or her role, the guardian ad litem shall have the following duties:
 - 1. Initial Tasks. Immediately after being appointed, the guardian ad litem shall review the case file. The guardian ad litem shall inform other parties or counsel of the appointment, and that as guardian ad litem, he or she should be served with copies of all pleadings filed in the case and any discovery exchanges, and is entitled to notice of and to fully participate in all hearings related to the appointment.

Building a Relationship with the Child.

- a. When the guardian ad litem meets with the child, all communications should be adapted to the child's age, level of education, cognitive and emotional development, cultural background, and degree of language acquisition, using an interpreter if necessary.
 - b. The guardian ad litem should inform the child, in a developmentally appropriate manner, about the court system, the proceedings, and the guardian ad litem's role and responsibilities.
 - c. The guardian ad litem should consider meeting with the child in an environment familiar to the child, including the child's home(s) where appropriate. It is important for the guardian ad litem to recognize that children may not be comfortable talking to the guardian ad litem in an office. Further, it is generally important for the guardian ad litem to observe a child's home(s) and current circumstances to be confident that the child's surroundings are safe and appropriate. While not a mandated reporter of abuse or neglect,³ the guardian ad litem should consider making a report to the court and/or appropriate child protection authorities when the guardian ad litem has concerns about the safety of the child.
 - d. The guardian ad litem should be prepared to spend meaningful time with the child. The guardian ad litem should, when appropriate, meet with the child outside the presence of the parties to ensure the child has a safe space to discuss the case and other matters with the guardian ad litem. Even preverbal children can provide valuable information about their needs through their behavior, including their interactions with their caretakers and other adults.
3. Investigations. The guardian ad litem shall conduct thorough, continuing, and independent investigations in accordance with the zealous representation of the child's best interests, with an awareness of and sensitivity to how his or her actions may impact the child's social, emotional, and educational well-being, including as appropriate:
- a. reviewing any non-confidential court files of the child, siblings, parties to the case, and household members; reviewing relevant confidential court files with special court authorization; and reviewing case-related records of any social service agency and other service providers;

³ See D.C. Code § 4-1321.01 et seq.; D.C. Code § 22-3020.52; see also D.C. Code § 16-2301 et seq. (statutory definition of "neglected child" and related definitions). But see D.C. Code § 4-1321.02(b); D.C. Code § 22-3020.52(c)(1).

- b. reviewing the child's medical, social, educational, psychiatric, and psychological evaluations and/or records to which the guardian ad litem will be granted access;
- c. contacting lawyers for the parties;
- d. contacting and meeting with the parties, with permission of their lawyers if the parties are represented by counsel;
- e. interviewing individuals who are significantly involved with the child;
- f. reviewing evidence related to the statutory custody factors set forth in D.C. Code Section 16-914(a)(3) directly, rather than relying principally upon other descriptions and characterizations from parties, counsel, witnesses, or other individuals;
- g. ascertaining and assessing the child's views in a developmentally appropriate manner;
- h. staying apprised of other relevant court proceedings affecting the child; and
- i. where feasible, assisting the parties in identifying and accessing services for the child and family and verifying implementation of such services.

4. Pre-trial Responsibilities. The guardian ad litem shall:

- a. conduct thorough, continuing, and independent investigations as set forth more fully in paragraph 3 above;
- b. conduct discovery when appropriate;
- c. develop a theory and strategy of the case to implement at hearings, including presentation of factual and legal issues;
- d. stay apprised of other relevant court proceedings affecting the child, the parties, and other household members;
- e. attend meetings involving issues within the scope of the appointment;
- f. take action to expedite the proceedings when appropriate;
- g. participate in and, when appropriate, initiate negotiations and mediation. When necessary, the guardian ad litem should clarify that he or she is not acting as a mediator; and a guardian ad litem who participates in a mediation should be bound by the confidentiality and privilege rules governing the mediation. If a settlement agreement is reached by the parties and submitted to the court, the guardian ad litem may notify the court of the guardian ad litem's position with respect to whether it is in the child's best interests;

- h. participate in depositions, pre-trial conferences, and hearings; and
- i. file or make petitions, motions, responses, or objections when necessary.

5. Hearings. The guardian ad litem shall appear in court on the dates and times scheduled for hearings and proceedings, and shall be prepared to represent fully and zealously the child's best interests. Although the guardian ad litem's position regarding the child's best interests may align with positions of other parties, the guardian ad litem shall be prepared to participate fully and shall not simply defer to or endorse the positions of other parties. Specifically, the guardian ad litem shall:

- a. identify herself or himself as the guardian ad litem at the beginning of any court hearing;
- b. make appropriate motions, file briefs, and preserve issues for appeal as appropriate;
- c. present and cross-examine witnesses and offer exhibits as necessary;
- d. if a child is to meet with the judge or testify, prepare the child by familiarizing the child with the places, people, procedures, and questioning to which the child will be exposed, and seek to minimize any harm to the child from the process;
- e. make an opening statement and a closing argument proposing specific findings of fact and conclusions of law; and
- f. advocate for a written order that conforms to the court's oral rulings and includes all statutorily required findings and notices.

6. Child's Interview or Testimony. The guardian ad litem shall take a position based on the child's best interests regarding whether the child should be interviewed by the judge or testify and shall file any necessary motions to further that position.⁴ Children, if they do testify, can be determined to be competent.⁵

⁴ See N.D. McN. v. R.J.H., Sr., 979 A.2d 1195 (D.C. 2009); In re Jam.J., 825 A.2d 902 (D.C. 2003).

⁵ See e.g., Barnes v. United States, 600 A.2d 821 (D.C. 1991); Smith v. United States, 414 A.2d 1189 (D.C. 1980); Robinson v. United States, 357 A.2d 412 (D.C. 1976); Edmondson v. United States, 346 A.2d 515 (D.C. 1975); In re Lewis, 88 A.2d 582 (D.C. 1952).

The guardian ad litem should seek to minimize any adverse consequences that may arise from a child being interviewed by a judge or called as a witness by seeking all appropriate accommodations permitted by law. The child should be told in advance that in-chambers or court testimony will be shared with the parties. The guardian ad litem should be cognizant that the trial court can limit questions and should request that all parties submit questions to chambers in advance.⁶

7. Reports. The guardian ad litem may prepare written and/or oral reports during the pendente lite, pre-trial, trial, and post-trial stages of the proceedings. Whenever the guardian ad litem submits a written report, it shall be provided directly to the judge's chambers and to the parties at least five business days before the next scheduled hearing or proceeding, unless good cause is shown. All written reports shall be served upon the parties by first class mail or e-service as appropriate and shall be accompanied by a certificate of service in conformity with court rules. All written reports should be limited to information the guardian ad litem: (a) believes to be supported by admissible evidence; and (b) intends to introduce at trial or an evidentiary hearing. The judge shall make a docket entry in the court's official case file that the written report was submitted and the date of submission.

IV. Applicability of District of Columbia Rules of Professional Conduct.

The District of Columbia Rules of Professional Conduct apply to guardians ad litem just as they do to all other attorneys practicing before the court, and specifically with respect to the following ethical issues that often arise for guardians ad litem:

- A. Zealous Representation of Child's Best Interests.⁷ A guardian ad litem shall represent the child's best interests zealously and diligently within the bounds of the law. In doing so, the guardian ad litem has professional discretion in determining the means by which the matter should be pursued. Because the guardian ad litem represents the child's best interests, and not the child's expressed wishes, the guardian ad litem is not bound by the explicit direction of the child and may make recommendations to the court that are different from the child's expressed wishes. However, the guardian ad litem should inform the court if the child's wishes are different from the guardian ad litem's recommendations and, in some instances as set forth in paragraph C below, an expressed wishes attorney may be appointed.
- B. Confidentiality of Communications.⁸ The guardian ad litem shall comply with applicable District of Columbia Rules of Professional Conduct and ethics opinions with respect to the confidentiality of communications between the guardian ad litem and the child and other confidential information obtained during the representation. The guardian ad litem may disclose the child's confidential information if the child consents or if the guardian ad litem believes doing so would be in the best interests of the child. The guardian ad litem shall consider the potential impact upon the child of any such disclosures to the court and the parties.

⁷ D.C. Rules of Prof'l Conduct R. 1.3.

⁸ D.C. Rules of Prof'l Conduct R. 1.6, R. 1.14.

- C. Conflicts of Interest.⁹ The guardian ad litem should always give careful consideration to potential conflicts and seek guidance as necessary. When the guardian ad litem's assessment of the child's best interests conflicts with the views of the child, the guardian ad litem shall notify the court of the conflict and in some circumstances, an attorney may be appointed to represent the child's expressed wishes. The new attorney for the child will represent the child's expressed wishes, while the guardian ad litem will advocate with regard to the child's best interests. As soon as the court resolves the issue that caused the conflict, the attorney for the child representing the child's expressed wishes may request leave of court to withdraw. The guardian ad litem also shall consider if a conflict of interest exists with regard to serving as the guardian ad litem for more than one child or sibling. The guardian ad litem shall not represent two or more siblings when their interests are adverse and shall never represent siblings when it is alleged that one sibling has physically or sexually abused the other. If the guardian ad litem determines that representation of multiple children could result in taking two or more adverse positions in the case, he or she shall make a request to the court for the appointment of a second guardian ad litem or may have to withdraw from representation of all of the children.
- D. Dealing with Represented and Unrepresented Parties.¹⁰ The guardian ad litem shall not contact or interview represented parties without permission from the party's attorney; provided that, the guardian ad litem may contact represented parties without such consent for the limited purpose of scheduling visits with the child. The guardian ad litem may not circumvent the District of Columbia Rules of Professional Conduct concerning communication with a represented party by requesting that a third party ask a represented party for information. In dealing with a person who is not represented by counsel, the guardian ad litem shall not state or imply that he or she is disinterested, and if the unrepresented person misunderstands the guardian ad litem's role, he or she shall make reasonable efforts to correct the misunderstanding.
- E. Ex-Parte Communications.¹¹ The guardian ad litem shall not engage in ex-parte communications with the court except: (1) in the event that a request for an emergency hearing is necessary to prevent imminent harm to the minor child, or (2) as authorized by the parties or counsel on behalf of the parties.

¹⁰ D.C. Rules of Professional Conduct R. 4.3; D.C. Bar Ethics Comm., Op. 295 (2000).

¹¹ D.C. Rules of Professional Conduct R. 3.5(b).

- F. Independence and Objectivity.¹² The guardian ad litem shall maintain independence, objectivity, and fairness, as well as the appearance of fairness in dealings with parties and professionals, both in and out of the courtroom. It is important to the fulfillment of the guardian ad litem's role and duties to make every effort to develop and maintain a professional working relationship with all parties, their counsel, and others who have significant access and/or interaction with the child, and to do so without sacrificing independence and focus.
- G. Guardian ad Litem as Witness or to Provide Testimony.¹³ Unless required by law, a guardian ad litem shall not be called as a witness nor shall a guardian ad litem testify, orally or in writing, in any hearing or evidentiary proceeding.

INFORMATION ABOUT CUSTODIAL POWERS OF ATTORNEY

What is a custodial power of attorney?

Under District of Columbia law, a parent can sign a custodial power of attorney that authorizes a third party (a person other than a parent) to make decisions on the child's behalf and/or designate with whom his/her child will live. A custodial power of attorney can also authorize the third party to obtain services for the child, like medical care or mental health care. You may wish to give such authority to a third party if you cannot take care of your child due to, for instance, a physical or mental health condition, extended hospitalization, incarceration, military deployment, or for any reason. You do not have to say why you are granting a custodial power of attorney, but you may do so if you wish. The powers and responsibilities granted to a third person by a custodial power of attorney are broad. Both the parent and the third party can seek legal advice regarding this document.

What powers does a custodial power of attorney grant?

The parent decides what powers to grant to the third party when preparing the custodial power of attorney. The attached sample power of attorney lists various powers that a parent may wish to grant. To grant the most power to a third party, a parent should check all of the lines in paragraph 5, especially the last line.

A parent may also limit the powers granted by the power of attorney. A parent may do so by writing specific limitations in paragraph 7.

Do I have to get a custodial power of attorney notarized?

Although notarization is not required, it may be helpful. Notarization may make it easier to use the form to obtain services for the child.

How should a third party use a custodial power of attorney?

When the third party seeks to enroll a child in school, obtain medical care for the child, or obtain any other service or benefit for the child, the third party should bring the custodial power of attorney. It may also help to bring a copy of the law (which is attached).

Can a parent revoke or withdraw the custodial power of attorney?

Yes. A parent can revoke the custodial power of attorney at any time after signing it. The custodial power of attorney form itself may describe how a parent can revoke the custodial power of attorney. A sample revocation form is also attached.

How long does a custodial power of attorney last?

Generally, if the custodial power of attorney does not include a time limit, it lasts until the parent revokes it. The sample form provides that you can revoke it in writing at any time, and a sample revocation form is also attached.

A parent can also specify a time limit for the power of attorney. For example, the parent could write in the form: "This custodial power of attorney shall take effect on [date] and shall remain in effect until [date]."

What is the difference between a custodial power of attorney and a court custody order?

A custodial power of attorney is a legal document signed by a parent but not approved by a court. Generally, it is easier to revoke a custodial power of attorney than to change a court custody order. Every case is different and you should seek legal advice if you have questions about which option to use.

Select Custody Case Law Updates from the DC Court of Appeals

Duguma v. Ayalew, 145 A.3d 517 (D.C. 2016).

D.C. courts must primarily consider the child's best interest when making custody determinations. The D.C. Code provides a non-exhaustive list of factors to be considered. One factor is the child's wishes as to his or her custodian, when practicable. To determine a child's preference, courts traditionally look to the child's testimony, evidence from a guardian ad litem (GAL), or circumstantial and anecdotal evidence that speaks to the children's desires. On July 13th, 2016, the D.C. Court of Appeals issued a decision that changes a party's thinking when litigating these issues. The decision, Duguma v. Ayalew, provided insight into the court's required process for determining the child's best interest. The case involved a custody dispute between divorced parents regarding three children, ages fourteen, nine, and seven. The custody trial consisted of only one witness: the children's father. The children did not testify as to their desired custodian, the court did not elicit GAL testimony, and no evidence was presented that speaks to the children's custodial desires. The court ultimately awarded physical and joint legal custody to the father and the mother appealed.

This decision is not a departure from previous case law, however there is language that affects how advocates should litigate custody cases. The statute remains the same; the standard remain the same. However as advocates we should react to Duguma by 1) ensuring we build a record that explicitly addresses a child's wishes, and 2) educate a judge when necessary that children need not testify directly about their wishes. Advocates must make conscious efforts to produce explicit evidence regarding the child's wishes when practicable. The D.C. Code does not assign weight to each custody factor, however it requires a court to consider all factors. Presenting explicit testimony during a trial will allow a party to accurately and specifically identify evidence in the record as proof that the court considered all necessary factors. Therefore building an explicit record will ensure a court considers all required factors and advocates will survive an appeal. Duguma also gives advocates an opportunity to educate the court. Judges interpreting this decision could incorrectly read it as a mandate for child testimony. The court remanded "to hear from the parties' children and consider their wishes respecting custody," which could be used as authority to require children to testify. That order, however, was case-specific. The decision later explicitly confirmed that it remains within the court's discretion to determine whether interviewing children in camera is required. The Duguma court did not fault appellee for failing to call his children as witnesses; the court remanded because of the "dearth" of evidence as to their wishes. Understanding this distinction will allow advocates to best represent their client's interests without potentially causing harm to children.

Downing v. Perry, 123 A.3d 474 (D.C. 2015).

In 2009 the mother and father agreed to share legal custody of their two children. They also committed to work with a Family Treatment Coordinator (FTC) who would issue binding recommendations when the parties could not make joint parenting decisions under the agreement. In a 2012 modification the parties agreed to continue sharing legal custody but agreed that the father, rather than the FTC, would have final tie-breaking authority to resolve disputes between the mother and father. In 2013 the father filed a motion to modify custody seeking sole legal custody of the children. The trial court held an evidentiary hearing after which it denied the father's request for sole custody but determined, at the suggestion of the mother, that there had been a substantial and material change in circumstances and that it was in the children's best interests to restore the FTC's tie-breaking powers. The father appealed, arguing that there had been no material change in circumstances, that the court abdicated its responsibility to decide "core issues" of legal custody by assigning those rights to the FTC, and that the father did not receive proper notice of the mother's request to modify custody. The Court of Appeals disagreed.

With respect to the substantial and material change in custody, the record reflected that the father was given tie-breaking authority in an effort to enable more effective communication between the parties, so that the father would feel more comfortable authorizing extracurricular activities for the children. Instead the father exercised de facto legal custody of the children. He used his tie-breaking authority to unilaterally refuse the children preventative medical care, forbid them from attending a summer camp during time with the mother, and remove them from extracurricular activities. The Court of Appeals held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in concluding that these actions were not foreseen at the time of the 2012 custody agreement and that the current framework was not in the best interests of the minor children.

The Court of Appeals also held that the trial court's restoration of the FTC's tie-breaking authority was not an improper delegation of its responsibility to decide the "core issues" of custody. The trial court merely delegated decision-making authority over day-to-day issues to the FTC.

Finally the Court of Appeals held that even though the mother did not file a counterclaim to the father's request for sole custody, because the mother proposed changing tie-breaking authority to the FTC in advance of the evidentiary hearing the father was on notice of the proposed change.

S.M. v. R.M., 92 A.3d 1128 (D.C. 2014)

In this appeal addressing the third party custody statute, D.C. Code §§ 16-831.01-13, the DC Court of Appeals answered the question: does the statutory presumption that custody with a parent is in the child's best interest apply after an initial award of custody to a third party?

In the underlying case, the court awarded custody of the minor child to the maternal aunt. The mother consented to this custody award with the understanding that when she completed a drug treatment program she would regain custody of the child. The mother successfully completed drug treatment and subsequently filed four motions to modify custody. The trial court denied each motion to modify without applying the parental presumption.

On appeal, the Court of Appeals held that if a parent knowingly and intelligently gives his or her irrevocable consent to custody with a non-parent, the parent waives his or her parental presumption and the presumption will not apply in subsequent modification proceedings. (“If a parent’s statutory presumption has already been rebutted (pursuant to D.C. Code § 16-831.06) or waived after a parent gives her irrevocable consent to the custody transfer (pursuant to D.C. Code § 16-831.05 (a)), there is no need to revive the parental presumption at the modification stage. To do so would seem contrary to the clear legislative intent to give parents heightened protection when initial custody transfer decisions are made, but to make determinative the best interest of the child after custody has been transferred to a third party.” S.M. v. R.M., 92 A.3d at 1137.) If, however, the parent preserves the presumption by entering into a revocable custody agreement with a third party, or if the parent does not knowingly and intelligently provide irrevocable consent to third party custody, then the parental presumption must be applied in the modification proceeding.

Ruffin v. Roberts, 89 A.3d 502 (D.C. 2014)

Trial court awarded the father sole physical and sole legal custody of the child with the consent of the mother. The mother asked the trial court to order visitation between the child and her maternal aunts. The father objected. The trial court concluded that it was not authorized to order third party visitation between the child and her maternal relatives over the objection of the father, the custodial parent. The mother argued on appeal (1) that her consent to custody with the father was conditioned on visitation between the child and her maternal aunts, and (2) that the court erred in concluding it could not order such visitation. The DC Court of Appeals held that the trial court did not err in concluding that the mother’s consent was unconditional and in concluding that it lacked authority to order third party visitation over the objection of the custodial parent.

W.H. v. D.W., 78 A.3d 327, (D.C. 2013)

The DC Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court’s decision to grant custody of the minor children to their older brother and grandmother, after the biological father of the children, W.H., appealed claiming that the brother and grandmother lacked standing to bring a claim for third party custody. Specifically, the Court found that D.W., the older half-brother of the minor children, satisfied the standing requirements of the Safe and Stable Homes Act, pursuant to D.C. Code § 16-831.02(a)(1)(B)(i)-(ii), because the children had lived with him their entire lives and he had been their primary caregiver for more than four out of the preceding six months. While the grandmother J.W. did not independently have standing to file for custody, the Court found that the trial court had not erred in granting joint custody to her and D.W. based on the best interests of the children. Lastly, the Court found that D.W. and J.W. had rebutted the presumption in favor of custody with a biological parent by clear and convincing evidence.

Estopina v. O'Brian, 68 A.3d 790 (D.C. 2013)

Father appealed trial court’s decision that awarding the mother primary physical custody and permitting her to relocate out of the jurisdiction was in the child’s best interest. The DC Court of Appeals upheld the decision finding that an arrangement that grants primary physical custody to one parent and visitation to another is joint custody and therefore the trial court did not fail to acknowledge the presumption in favor of joint custody. The trial court's decision was not an abuse of discretion because the court weighed all of the enumerated best interest factors in DC Code §16-914 (a)(3) (2001), and no improper factors, in determining the child's best interests. The trial court also properly considered several additional factors given the mother's request to relocate with the child.

Jordan v. Jordan, 14 A.3d 1136 (D.C. 2011)

In this appeal from an award of joint custody, the DC Court of Appeals ruled on two subjects: awarding custody in spite of intrafamily offenses, and the appointment of a parent coordinator. First, the DC Court of Appeals held that a trial court does not have to make express findings under DC Code § 16-914 (a-1) (an award of custody or visitation to a parent found to have committed an intrafamily offense "shall be supported by a written statement... specifying factors and findings which support" the award) when the record plainly supports the conclusion that the requisite findings were made. Here, unlike in P.F. v. N.C., below, the trial court order explicitly noted the offenses and found the presumption against the parent who committed them was rebutted by a balancing of the other statutory factors.

Second, the DC Court of Appeals held that Domestic Relations Rule 53 (on special masters) gives trial courts the authority to both appoint a parent coordinator over a party's objection when the case presents exceptional circumstances, and to delegate to the parenting coordinator the authority to make decisions on day-to-day issues that do not implicate the court's exclusive responsibility to adjudicate the parties' custody and visitation rights.

Wilson v. Craig, 987 A.2d 1160 (D.C. 2010)

The DC Court of Appeals found that the trial court did not err in modifying an agreement for joint child custody where high levels of conflict between the parents rendered the joint custody agreement unworkable. The trial judge held an evidentiary hearing and appointed a parenting coordinator to investigate the custody arrangement. Although the parties had expected the agreement would reduce hostility between them, the trial judge made exhaustive and well-supported findings that "excessive levels of discord" between the parents and psychological and emotional distress of the children warranted modification of the custody agreement.

Fields v. Mayo, 982 A.2d 809 (D.C. 2009)

The DC Court of Appeals upheld the trial court's ruling granting a biological father sole legal and physical custody of his son, who had been cared for by a maternal great aunt for over nine years. In rejecting the great aunt's arguments that the trial court abused its discretion, the DC Court of Appeals made three important observations: (1) although not necessarily applicable in this case, under the recently codified Safe and Stable Homes for Children and Youth Act, a person who is shown by clear and convincing evidence to be a "de facto parent" shall be considered a parent for the purposes of custody proceedings. Unlike any other third party custodian, therefore, a "de facto parent" does not have to rebut by clear and convincing evidence the presumption that custody of a child by a biological parent is in the child's best interests; (2) the trial court properly found that the birth mother forfeited her right to parent the child because of her continued lack of involvement in the child's life--a parent's liberty interest in designating a caretaker (in this case the great aunt) is not absolute and yields to the child's best interest; and (3) regarding the role of the guardian ad litem in custody matters, the position taken by the guardian ad litem as an advocate for the child can serve as an inference of the child's preference.

K.R. v. C.N., 969 A.2d 257 (D.C. 2009)

A father appealed the trial court's award of child custody to his child's maternal aunt, arguing that the court did not have jurisdiction to hear the aunt's complaint for custody. The DC Court of Appeals agreed that at the time of the lower court's decision, there was no statutory provision giving the lower court jurisdiction to hear the aunt's complaint. Since that time, however, the DC Council enacted the Safe and Stable Homes for Children and Youth Amendment Act. The Act gave "standing to file a custody action to a third party 'with whom a child has established a strong emotional tie' and 'who has assumed parental responsibilities.'" The Act did not establish whether that standing should be applied retroactively, and the Court did not resolve that open issue. The parties agreed that given the lapse of time and the absence of a record to support third-party standing under the Act, it was not clear whether the child should remain with the maternal aunt. The case was therefore remanded for a determination of whether the prerequisites of the new statute had been satisfied and whether custody with the aunt remained in the child's best interest.

N.D. v. R.J.H., 979 A.2d 1195 (D.C. 2009)

In camera interviews with children, even if permitted, must be recorded. The DC Court of Appeals concluded, however, that the lack of record did not prejudice the appellant and the Court affirmed the child custody order. The Court cites the guardian ad litem's pre-trial report as part of the record of the case in evaluating harmlessness.

P.F. v. N.C., 953 A.2d 1107 (D.C. 2008)

The D.C. Court of Appeals remanded a trial court's award of custody to the father in spite of his commission of two intrafamily offenses on the mother where the record did not make clear those offenses were sufficiently considered. The trial court order contained "little explicit discussion... regarding the part that the father's abusive conduct played in the judge's calculus," and instead consisted primarily of balancing the other statutory factors. Though the findings made by the trial judge in balancing the other factors were extensive enough that they "could persuade a reasonable fact-finder that notwithstanding the father's abusive conduct, the boys would be better off with their father," because the intrafamily offenses were not explicitly discussed, the Court remanded.

Home Studies and Forensic Evaluations in Custody Cases

Home Studies

The court can order a “social services evaluation,” commonly known as a home study. SCR-Dom.Rel. 404. Home studies are free of charge and performed upon court order by the Court Social Services (CSS) Division of D.C. Superior Court (Family Court/Juvenile Services Division). Home studies are performed by a CSS staff member called a “probation officer.” Some home study officers may be social workers, others are not. Completion of a home study usually takes approximately six to nine weeks.

Home studies are typically ordered for both the plaintiff’s and the defendant’s homes but occasionally a judge will decide that a home study of only one home is needed. The person conducting the home study will typically meet with and interview each parent in her/his home and they will usually want an opportunity to see the child in both home environments. They may also want to interview the child. Court Social Services will customarily do a basic D.C. criminal court records check on the parties and may do one on any other adults living in the home. Occasionally, CSS will also interview other individuals who play a significant role in the child’s life, particularly if they live in the home. CSS will contact the parties directly to schedule meetings and home visits.

The report issued by CSS will usually include a recommendation for services and/or custody. Typically, CSS sends the report to the judge and counsel can then request a copy from chambers or at the next hearing. However, the home study officer may be willing to provide a copy of the report directly to counsel.

The CSS supervisor for home studies is Lawrence Weaver (202-508-1680).

Forensic Evaluations

The Assessment Center (formerly known as Youth Forensic Services Division) is a division of the D.C. Department of Mental Health. The Assessment Center performs court-ordered psychological and psychiatric evaluations free of charge in Family Court cases, including custody, neglect and juvenile criminal cases. It is located at 300 Indiana Avenue, N.W., Room 4023, Washington, D.C. 20001 (phone: 724-4377; fax: 724-2383). Debbie Allen is the clinic coordinator.

The Assessment Center requires a court order stating the evaluation is to be performed. A completed home study by Court Social Services Division is usually required before an evaluation can be scheduled. After the Assessment Center receives the court order and the home study, it will contact the parties directly to schedule appointments.

Evaluations are completed by a psychologist or a psychiatrist. The court order can specify a psychiatric evaluation, a psychological evaluation, or both, or can leave that decision to the Assessment Center. Usually only the individuals specifically named in the order will be seen, so if you know you want the child included in the evaluation, be sure they are named in the order (or you can include a provision leaving that decision to the Assessment Center's discretion). In general, the Assessment Center's preference is to see both parties as well as the child unless the child is extremely young.

The Assessment Center's evaluations typically consist of review of the home study and any other background materials provided (they will usually accept materials from the parties/counsel), clinical interviews of each parent, psychological testing (if a psychologist is doing the evaluation or if a psychiatrist requests it), and possibly some observation of parent-child interaction. It will typically include some kind of age-appropriate evaluation of the child (observation, interview, psychological testing). A custody evaluation, in theory, can encompass an assessment of the parent's overall mental and emotional status, judgment, and parenting ability, as well as the child's mental and emotional status, the child's relationship with each party (bonding/attachment), and the child's emotional needs. Thus, forensic evaluations may be appropriate even when there is no allegation that a parent is suffering from a mental or emotional disorder.

The evaluator will produce a report of the evaluation and will usually make recommendations for custodial arrangements or services for the parties or child. The report is usually sent to the court; if counsel cannot obtain copies directly from the Assessment Center, they can be obtained by contacting the judge's chambers. The evaluator is available to testify but will not do so without a subpoena. It is advisable to address scheduling issues with the Assessment Center and the court well in advance if you are planning on calling the evaluator as a witness. The court is usually reasonably flexible in accommodating the evaluator's schedule.

Related Issues

Parties can request the court to order home studies and forensic evaluations. Judges also frequently order them sua sponte.

The amount of time needed to complete the study/evaluation varies depending on staffing levels of the offices and the number of appointments needed for the particular case, but home studies average six to nine weeks and forensic evaluations an additional four weeks. You can contact the offices to get current information on the estimated time of completion.

The status of these reports vis-à-vis the record is an issue that has not been conclusively resolved. On the one hand, there appears to be no law explicitly providing that these reports automatically become a part of the record (become evidence) and if the evaluations are analogized to examinations ordered under the rules of discovery (SCR-Domestic Relations 35), then it could be argued that the reports should not automatically become a part of the record. Similarly, a written report is hearsay, may contain additional hearsay, and there may be issues relating to opinions contained in the report. On the other hand, there is an implication that because the court can order the reports, they become a part of the record and the court can consider them in making a decision.

It is difficult to predict how each judge will handle these evaluations and reports; a particular judge may not even be consistent from case to case. It is fairly clear that in practice, judges read the reports prior to trial and rely on them when making pendente lite decisions. For purposes of trial, some judges appear to assume that the reports are part of the record. Some judges indicate that they read the reports but that they are not part of the record at trial. Sometimes a judge may inquire of counsel and the parties whether they will stipulate to the reports being entered into evidence or whether they will require that the author be called as a witness. Or a judge may assume that if no one is raising an issue, the parties are in essence stipulating as to the admissibility of the report. Counsel/parties are always free to raise the issue of whether and how the report can be admitted into evidence and considered by the court.

Ziegler v. Ziegler, 304 A.2d 13 (D.C. 1973), held that it is reversible error for the court not to permit cross-examination of the author of a home study.

PAC Program

The Program for Agreement and Cooperation in Contested Custody Cases (PAC) was initiated pursuant to D.C. Superior Court Administrative Order 07-06, www.dccourts.gov/dccourts/docs/07-06.pdf. PAC was originally implemented as a pilot program and cases were selected for PAC on a random basis and assigned to one judge, then later to two judges. As of mid-2009, all non-consent custody cases, including divorces in which custody is contested, typically go through the PAC program.

The parent education seminar is a group session, not an individual one. A session for children ages 6 to 15 is conducted at the same time in a different part of the courthouse. The purpose of the sessions, as set forth in the Administrative Order, is to educate parents about the impact of custody disputes on the children, the importance of insulating children from the process, help parties develop conflict-free ways of communicating, help the children cope with the emotional stress and practical consequences of a separated family, and foster healthy co-parenting relationships. Mediation is conducted through the court's Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Division. Mediation is confidential.

The dates for the PAC seminar and mediation intake will be scheduled at the initial hearing.

If there are domestic violence issues, you can request that your client be taken out of the PAC program or at least that your client and the other party be scheduled to attend separate parent education seminars. It may be possible to address this with the Family Court Central Intake Center at the time the case is filed; otherwise, a written request will have to be filed. If a party wishes to opt out of mediation because of domestic violence issues, that request should be made in the first instance to the Multi-Door Dispute Resolution office. Note that these procedures may change from time to time. If you have questions, contact 202-879-1851.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

ADMINISTRATIVE ORDER 07-06

(Parent Education Pilot Program)

WHEREAS, in 2005 the Family Court of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia received 1305 complaints for custody, as well as 1692 complaints for contested divorce and legal separation, many of which involved contested custody issues; and approximately 70% of cases involving contested custody issues proceeded without the assistance of counsel;

WHEREAS, a national model for educating parents on the impact on children of high conflict custody proceedings has been developed which provides parents and other caretakers involved in contested custody litigation with education, skills, and mediation services to: (1) understand the harm their conflict causes children, (2) understand the importance of insulating children from the conflict, (3) help the parties develop conflict-free ways to communicate with each other, (4) generally help the children cope with the emotional stress and practical consequences of a separated family and (5) foster healthy co-parenting relationships; and

WHEREAS, the Domestic Relations, Paternity and Support Subcommittee of the Family Court Implementation Committee has created a pilot project known as the Program for Agreement and Cooperation in Contested Custody Cases (PAC) that includes educational seminars for parents and other caregivers and, at an age appropriate level, for children based on the national model:

NOW, THEREFORE, it is, by the Court,

ORDERED, that a pilot program known as the Program for Agreement and Cooperation in Contested Custody Cases (PAC) is hereby established in the manner set forth below:

- The PAC program will be instituted as a pilot program on one of the six Domestic Relations Calendars that handle divorce, custody, and legal separation cases in the Family Court;
- The PAC program will apply to all litigants involved in cases that have custody or visitation as a contested issue on that calendar. In cases involving domestic violence, parents and other caretakers will be screened to determine the manner of participation in the PAC program;
- Whenever litigation is commenced that includes an issue of contested child custody, the case will be assigned to the PAC program docket and a Notice of Hearing and Order to Appear ("NOHOTA") will be issued that includes a scheduled date for a parenting education seminar and a scheduled appointment for mediation at the Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Division;

- the NOHOTA shall be served with the summons and complaint or within 20 days of issuance whenever it is issued at the behest of any party other than the plaintiff;

- Parties in PAC program cases will be required to attend a parenting education seminar, at the same time their children attend a separate, age appropriate children's seminar;

- Participation in the PAC program will be without prejudice to any party's ability to seek and obtain child support or emergency relief prior to completion of the education and mediation process.

- Apart from procedures necessary to accommodate the education seminars and mediation sessions, cases in the PAC program will be subject to all of the provisions of law and rules of procedure otherwise applicable.

It is further,

ORDERED, this order shall remain in effect until February 1, 2008.

SO ORDERED.

Domestic Relations Branch
Revised Case Management Plan
(Effective January 1, 2015)

HISTORY

“The Mission of the Family Court of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia is to protect and support children brought before it, strengthen families in trouble, provide permanency for children and decide disputes involving families fairly and expeditiously while treating all parties with dignity and respect.” Family Court Transition Plan, Vol. 1, page 7 (April 5, 2002). Consistent with the mission and goals set forth in the Family Court Transition Plan, the Family Court adopts the following goals to implement a comprehensive case management and scheduling plan for domestic relations matters:

GOALS

- To provide prompt and efficient resolution of cases and to minimize the number of trips to court required for resolution.
- To provide prompt access to justice by providing for earlier initial hearings, pre-hearing information gathering, substantive initial hearings (with appropriate notice) and access to facilitation services at the time of initial hearings.
- To maximize court resources and better serve the public by creating uniformity and predictable schedules, when feasible, and resolving cases fairly and efficiently.
- To provide centralization of domestic relations case scheduling in one location and with uniform scheduling parameters and requirements (consistent with the Family Court implementation plan of centralized intake).

- To promote earlier use of alternative dispute resolution (ADR) in appropriate cases involving children and families to resolve disputes in a non-adversarial manner and with the most effective means.
- To obtain and maintain manageable caseloads with resolution within nationally accepted time frames/standards with a goal to permit judicial officers adequate time to devote to each child and/or family.

METHODS

To accomplish these goals, the Family Court Central Intake Center (CIC), the Domestic Relations Branch (DRB) and the Family Court judges work hand-in-hand to facilitate a fair, efficient, seamless system to provide services to the court's customers.

PERFORMANCE MEASURES

In 2012, the Superior Court of the District of Columbia adopted performance standards for resolving cases fairly and timely.¹ The standards reflect an adaptation of national best practices to the caseloads and circumstances unique to the Superior Court. In domestic relations cases, the court is guided by the following performance measures:

- (a) Ninety-five percent (95%) of uncontested custody and uncontested divorce cases should be disposed within 60 days of filing.
- (b) Ninety-eight percent (98%) of contested custody and divorce cases on the Domestic Relations I (DR-I) calendar² should be disposed within 365 days of filing.

¹ See Administrative Order 12-04 (March 23, 2012).

² Pursuant to Super. Ct. Dom. Rel. R. 40(c), it is the presiding judge's responsibility to designate cases to the DR-I calendar. The factors considered in the determination are "the estimated length of trial, the number of witnesses

(c) Ninety-eight percent (98%) of contested custody and divorce cases on the Domestic Relations II (DR-II) calendar³ should be disposed within 270 days of filing.

(d) Ninety-five percent (95%) of contested custody and divorce cases should be heard within two trial settings.

CASE INITIATION

The Central Intake Center (CIC) is the depository for all Family Court filings. Upon accepting filings for divorce, custody, and visitation/access, the deputy clerks in CIC will issue a notice of hearing, and the cases will be set within 60 days or less for initial hearing from the date of filing. However, cases involving child support will be set within 45 days or less, as required by statute. If the case involves both child support and other issues, then the support hearing date will serve as the initial hearing date as well. The judges will have set times and dates for the CIC to select and schedule initial hearings. The CIC will also issue an initiation packet that includes a brochure for the Family Court Self-Help Center and information on where to access other legal resources.

UNCONTESTED MATTERS

At the time of filing an uncontested divorce or uncontested custody case -- which includes a complaint for absolute divorce or custody, a consent answer or answers, and/or an uncontested praecipe -- the matter will be assigned to the uncontested judicial officer by the deputy clerks in CIC. In collaboration with the DRB clerk's office and judicial staff, these matters will be scheduled within 30 to 45 days of filing. Pursuant to the Family Court's performance measures, written findings of who may appear and the exhibits that may be introduced, the nature of the factual and legal issues involved, the extent to which discovery may require supervision by the Court, the number of motions that may be filed and any other relevant factor appropriate for the orderly administration of justice."

³ DR-II cases make up the vast majority of all domestic relations cases.

fact and conclusions of law will be entered within 60 days of filing. If an uncontested praecipe and/or consent answer are received after initial filing, the case will remain on the originally assigned calendar, but will be scheduled for hearing by the assigned judicial officer within 30 days from the filing of the uncontested praecipe. If a matter becomes uncontested at the time of the initial hearing, then the assigned judicial officer shall hear the matter on that date.

CONTESTED MATTERS

Initial Hearing: At the initial hearing, the judge shall issue a scheduling order which will provide dates for, among other things, discovery deadlines, motions, pretrial statements, and a pretrial conference. The judge shall also schedule the dates the parties will attend the Program for Agreement and Cooperation (PAC) Seminar and the mediation intake date. The judge may issue a separate order setting forth the procedure and requirements for the pretrial hearing as well as the required content of the pretrial statement. The following guidelines shall be used when issuing a scheduling order, although a judge may determine that a different timetable is more appropriate:

- The pendente lite (temporary) hearing should list the issues to be tried and should be held within six weeks of the initial hearing.
- Discovery deadlines should be set for custody, child support, and divorces from 45 to 120 days after the initial hearing, depending on the complexity of the case.
- A deadline for naming experts should be set at least 45 days prior to close of discovery.
- A deadline for completing mediation or ADR should be set no later than two weeks before the pretrial hearing.
- A deadline for discovery motions should be set no later than two weeks before the pretrial hearing.

- A date for filing of a pretrial statement should be set at least one week before the pretrial hearing.
- The pretrial hearing should be set within two to four weeks after the discovery deadline and two weeks before trial.
- The trial should be set within six to nine months after a custody case is filed, but not less than 210 days from that date. To the extent possible, every effort should be made to hear trials on consecutive days.

Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Division/ADR: At the conclusion of the initial hearing, all litigants will be mandated to participate in mediation at the Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Division⁴ or ADR.⁵

Attorney Negotiator Program: At the initial hearing, the parties are encouraged to meet with an attorney negotiator. The attorney negotiator is responsible for meeting with all parties and attempting to resolve any issues on which the parties can agree. The attorney negotiator may provide the parties with legal information, but not advice, and can also explain the court process.

Program for Agreement and Cooperation (PAC) Seminar: Parties in contested custody cases will be required to attend a PAC Seminar. The PAC Seminar is designed to help parties co-parent, improve communication, and understand the impact that conflict has on children. The judge may consider the unexcused failure of a party to attend and complete the PAC program when making a final custody determination.

⁴ Where there has been previous domestic violence between the parties, the Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Division may determine mediation is not appropriate.

⁵ Parties who have in forma pauperis status, or who otherwise qualify as low-income, may not be mandated to participate in paid ADR sessions.

Status Hearings: Judicial officers should avoid automatically scheduling status hearings, but may schedule such hearings as they deem necessary.

Bifurcated divorces: A judge may grant a request to bifurcate a divorce case and resolve the issue of child custody prior to considering contested financial matters. In bifurcated divorce cases, when necessary, the following deadlines may be established:

- The discovery deadline for financial issues will be 45 days after the custody trial.
- The date for naming financial experts for the plaintiff will be three weeks after the custody trial; for the defendant it will be four weeks after custody trial.
- The date for filing a pretrial statement regarding financial issues will be one week before the pretrial hearing.
- The deadline for completing ADR will be two to three weeks after discovery closes and two weeks before trial.
- The trial on financial issues should be held not more than 12 months after case is filed.

MOTIONS SCHEDULING

Upon filing, motions are forwarded to the DRB clerk's office and then submitted to chambers for a ruling or scheduling of a hearing date. When a judge makes a determination on the record regarding a scheduling or consent issue – including, but not limited to, orders appointing guardians ad litem, and orders for mental health evaluations and/or home studies – that order shall be reduced to writing within five business days and mailed to the parties.

For pre-judgment motions, if a motion is not ruled on within 60 days of filing of proof of service on the parties, the DRB clerk's office shall set a date for a hearing on the motion regardless of whether or not a hearing has previously been held. Parties shall be given at least 14 days notice of the hearing. If the motion is ruled on in the interim, the hearing shall be vacated.

Post-judgment motions to modify support will be set for hearing within 45 days, as required by statute. CIC will coordinate selection of a date with chambers in accordance with the calendar judge's schedule. Other post-judgment motions, if not already set by chambers, shall be set for hearing by the DRB clerk's office within 60 days of filing of proof of service on the parties.

EMERGENCY HEARINGS

The following may be considered “emergencies” requiring an ex parte hearing: a child in imminent danger, a child who has been kidnapped, a complete denial of access to a child, and other extraordinary situations that the court deems appropriate. Emergency motions will be handled according to the following protocol:

1. Party or attorney advises the deputy clerk at the CIC that he or she is filing an “emergency” pleading and is requesting an emergency hearing.
2. CIC first will contact the chambers of the judge assigned to the case and will advise the chambers' staff of the filing. If the assigned judge is unavailable, CIC will contact the chamber's staff of the DRB daily emergency judge. Any request for an emergency hearing must be e-filed or submitted to CIC on or before 4:00 p.m. EST.

3. If the judge determines an emergency hearing is required, the chambers' staff will advise the party (or counsel) of the scheduling of the hearing. Unless it would be inconsistent with Super. Ct. Dom. Rel. R. 65(b), the chambers' staff will attempt to call the opposing party (or counsel) to advise him or her of the filing and the time and place of the hearing. Failure to reach the opposing party by phone will not prevent the judge from ruling. In the event that the judge holds an emergency hearing and enters an order granting relief, the judge's order will include the following: (a) a date for a follow-up hearing within ten business days of the order; (b) a date certain by which the adverse party must be served with the motion and the order(s) (if granted ex parte); and (c) a statement that failure to appear at the further hearing date or to serve the opposing party may result in termination of the order and dismissal of the case.
4. If the judge determines that an emergency hearing is not required, the judge will issue an order. If appropriate the judge may set an expedited hearing within two weeks. In the event that the judge determines that a hearing should be held on an expedited basis, the judge may enter an order and set the matter to be heard, requiring the presence of the adverse party at said hearing if served with the order; this order may include language that if the adverse party, once served, fails to appear, a decision may be made in their absence.

CONTINUANCES: Continuances are governed by D.C. Fam. Ct. R. G. The judicial officers will make every effort to limit the granting of continuances, especially when it may negatively impact the children involved. Pursuant to the Family Court's performance measures relating to trial date certainty, judicial officers will strive to hear all matters within two trial date settings.

HANDBOOK FOR SELF-REPRESENTED LITIGANTS: In 2014, the Domestic Relations

Subcommittee prepared a handbook to assist people who represent themselves in divorce, custody, and child support cases. The handbook is available on the court's website at:

www.dccourts.gov/internet/documents/DR-Handbook-for-Self-Represented-Parties.pdf. The handbook provides a great deal of information about domestic relations law and procedures, including filing, service of process, preparation for court, and many other useful topics. It also contains information about other legal resources available to parties in such cases, including the Family Court Self-Help Center, a free, walk-in clinic located in the courthouse that provides assistance to self-represented parties in their family law cases.

RECOURSE FOR FAILURE TO FOLLOW THE COMPREHENSIVE CASE MANAGEMENT AND SCHEDULING PLAN: Litigants whose cases are beyond the timeframes set forth in this document may file a praecipe requesting that judicial action be taken. Said praecipes will aid in alerting both the judicial officer and the clerk's office of the deficiency and will expedite the processing of such cases. A sample praecipe is attached.

ACCESSING PUBLIC BENEFITS IN DC AND ENROLLING A CHILD IN A DC PUBLIC SCHOOL WITHOUT A CUSTODY ORDER

Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF)

- “Caretaker relatives” may be eligible to receive cash assistance for themselves and for children in their care through TANF even if the caretaker does not have a custody order
 - A “caretaker relative” is a family member who is caring for a child and who is related to the child by blood, half-blood or adoption. Most, but not all family relationships establish “caretaker relative” status. See DC Code § 4-201.01(1C) (2001).
 - Additional eligibility requirements for all TANF applicants can be found at DC Code § 4-205 et. Seq., and include the following:
 - DC residency
 - Pregnant or caring for a child under 19
 - US citizen, legal alien, or permanent resident
 - Low or very low income
 - Under employed, unemployed, or about to become unemployed
- The relative caretaker must ask to be included in the “assistance unit” to receive benefits for themselves and the child
 - The “assistance unit” is “all individual whose needs, income and resources are considered in determining eligibility for, and the amount of, public assistance.” See DC Code § 4-201.01(1B) (2001)
 - A caretaker relative’s income and resources will be considered in the assistance unit’s eligibility determination. Therefore, a caretaker relative that does not have very low income and resources might consider applying for General Assistance for Children (GAC) because GAC does not take into account the caretaker’s income and resources. See section on GAC eligibility below

General Assistance for Children (GAC)

- When a person is not a “caretaker relative” or is unable to show that they are a “caretaker relative,” the caregiver may still be able to receive cash assistance for a child through GAC, even if the caretaker does not have a custody order
 - The caretaker will be asked provide authorization from the child’s parent or other responsible relative, or a court order designating the applicant as the temporary or permanent caretaker for the child. See D.C. Code §4-205.05a(c-1)(1)(2001)

If the caretaker cannot reasonably obtain such authorization, proof that the caregiver is caring for the child must be provided. Acceptable forms of proof can be found at D.C. Code §4-205.05a(c-1)(2) (2001). They include but are not limited to the following:

- Leases indicating that the child lives with the caretaker
 - Medical records or school records bearing the caretaker’s signature
 - Affidavits from teachers, social workers, medical staff or other professionals involved in the family’s life
- The Income Maintenance Administration (IMA), the DC agency that manages and distributes GAC funds, has stated that a grandmother could provide the birth mother’s birth certificate and the child’s birth certificates to establish “caretaker relative” eligibility.
- Even though the caretaker does not have to be a “caretaker relative” as defined above, the caretaker must meet some requirements for TANF eligibility, including D.C. residency. See D.C. Code §4-205.05a(c) (2001).
- The caretaker is not included in the “assistance unit” under GAC, and the caretaker should make it clear when applying for GAC that they do not wish to be included in the “assistance unit,” and that the caretaker is only applying for the child.
 - Exclusion from the assistance unit prevents the caretaker’s financial situation from being a factor in the eligibility determination. See D.C. Code §4-205.05a(c)(1) (2001).

MEDICAID/DC HEALTHY FAMILIES

- A child who is part of an “assistance unit” that receives TANF or GAC should be eligible for health insurance through Medicaid/D.C. Healthy Families even if the caretaker does not have a custody order.
- The caretaker for the child may also be eligible, depending on the caretaker’s income and whether s/he has private insurance.

- To apply for Medicaid and not TANF or GAC, a DC Healthy Families Application should be filled out – visit the links below for information and to access the DC Healthy Families application:
 - Information about Medicaid:
<http://dhcf.dc.gov/service/medicaid>
 - Information about DC Healthy Families:
<http://dhcf.dc.gov/service/dc-healthy-families>
 - DC Health Families Application:

THE COMBINED APPLICATION

- Caretakers can apply for cash assistance through TANF or GAC and Medicaid all at once by using the “combined application.”
 - The caretaker will need to go to an Economic Security Administration (ESA) (formerly known as the IMA) service center and fill out a “combined application.” The application can be found here:
 - Combined Application (English):
http://dhs.dc.gov/sites/default/files/dc/sites/dhs/publication/attachments/combinedform_eng1.pdf
 - Combined Application (Spanish):
http://dhs.dc.gov/sites/default/files/dc/sites/dhs/publication/attachments/combinedform_spa_0.pdf
- The Economic Security Administration (ESA) (formerly known as the Income Maintenance Administration or IMA) determines eligibility for benefits, including Temporary Cash Assistance for Needy Families (TANF), Medical Assistance, Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). For more information about public benefits and to find the nearest ESA services center, visit the ESA website:
<http://dhs.dc.gov/page/economic-security>

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

- A court custody order is not required to enroll a child at DC Public school if the caretaker is an “other primary caregiver” and is a DC resident.

- An “other primary caregiver” is a person other than a parent or court-appointed custodian or guardian who is the primary provider of care and support to a child who resides with him or her, and whose parent, custodian, or guardian is unable to supply such care and support. See D.C. Code § 38-301(10) (2001); D.C. MUN. REGS. TIT. 5, § 5004.1 (2011)
- DC Code §38-310(b) (2001) and D.C. MUN. REGS. TIT. 5, § 5003.1 (2011) provide that a caretaker can prove other primary caregiver status by providing ONE of the following documents:
 - Previous school records indicating that the student is in the care of the caregiver; or
 - Immunization or medical records indicating that the student is in the care of the caregiver; or
 - Proof that the caregiver receives public or medical benefits on behalf of the student; or
 - A signed statement, sworn under penalty of perjury, that he or she is the primary caregiver for the student (submitted on a standard form); or
 - An attestation from a legal, medical or social service professional attesting to the caregiver's status relevant to the student (also on a standard form)
- The standardized forms for residency verification and school enrollment can be found in the Education Practice Kit on the P:Drive: P:\Legal\Resources\CLC Practice Kits\Practice Kit 6 - Education Toolkit (rev. 8-11)\3. School Enrollment\3.c. DC\3.c.i. DCPS

Same Day Express

Spring Break and Summer is almost here and for many people it's associated with family gatherings and good times. But for many parents involved in a custody dispute, this time can be a lonely and sad time of the year especially when they are denied access to their child. Not surprisingly, this time of the year can also be associated with spikes in domestic violence and parental conflict as a result of unresolved issues about visitation. I think we can help families make this time a happy time for their children by offering Same Day Express.

Same Day Express (SDE) is not the same as same day mediation. SDE is for the limited purpose of discussing a time-sharing schedule for Spring Break and Summer only. It is not designed to address long-term issues like custody and child support. Those issues will continue to be handled through same day mediation or normal scheduling.

Here's how it will work!

- ✚ At the initial hearing, a Family Judge can refer parties to SDE to negotiate an agreement on Spring Break and Summer.
- ✚ These parties will do an intake onsite at the courthouse.
- ✚ If the case is appropriate for mediation, they will begin mediation that day.
- ✚ We will only offer one session for up to 2 hours.
- ✚ If the parties are able to reach an agreement on Spring Break and Summer, we will write up the agreement that day using a template specifically designed for that purpose.
- ✚ Multi-Door staff will review and approve the agreement that day and send the parties back to court with a signed agreement for the judge's approval that same day.
- ✚ Because we are not dealing with any financial issues at that time, there is no need for documentation or the completion of financial forms.
- ✚ Because the issues are limited to Spring Break and Summer, the time it takes to draft and review this agreement will be easier and quicker.
- ✚ If parties are unable to reach an agreement using SDE, they will have the option of continuing mediation through normal scheduling procedures.

Let's make this time the best it can be for all the children represented in our family cases that are seldom seen but have the most to gain from our involvement in their lives.

MEDIATION DATE:

MEDIATION TIME:

Jeannie M. Adams, Division Director

What is Mediation?

Mediation is a voluntary process that offers parties an opportunity and setting to discuss issues of communication, separation, divorce, child custody, visitation and support, alimony, debt, division of property and other family matters. Parties will be able to share their views and have an opportunity to address important issues in a cooperative and constructive way. Our aim is to provide a collaborative environment in which parties can creatively address their needs and those of their children, and to assist in drafting and negotiating and drafting agreements to guide future relations.

Is mediation confidential?

Yes! All matters discussed and disclosed are protected by the Court's policy of confidentiality. With the exception of the actual written agreement, nothing said or disclosed in mediation is allowed in court, and mediators may not testify. The only other exceptions are threats made by a party or alleged child abuse or neglect.

Who participates in mediation?

- ◆ Parents and/or custodial adults
- ◆ Attorneys with both parties consenting
- ◆ Mediator(s)

Who are the mediators?

Our mediators are trained professionals who help you identify issues, clarify needs, and consider options that help you to come to an agreement. Mediators are neutral and do not give advice or render decisions. Instead, they facilitate a positive discussion and provide an atmosphere that encourages consideration both of parties' realistic needs and the interests of their children.

How can mediation help?

Mediation is a unique opportunity to speak with professionals about the family, to express concerns, and to resolve your case without the emotional and financial cost of going to trial. Mediation removes the unpredictability of trial, and it allows parties more time for trying to creatively solve problems. In this manner, mediation helps families heal and rebuild their lives, and it encourages future collaboration.

What to expect at mediation:

The mediator leads a structured conversation about the issues in the case. The mediators will speak with the parties jointly and separately and will ask each party to document all issues involving financial terms. Sessions are usually two hours long and a case generally takes 3-4 sessions to reach conclusion.

What to expect after mediation:

If an agreement is reached, the mediator will draft the agreement. The Family Mediation Program Branch Chief then reviews the agreement before it is submitted to parties for review. Clients are encouraged to request that their attorney review it as well. Once the parties approve the final draft, the agreement may be signed and submitted to the judge if it is a court case. Mediation agreements may also be merged into court orders. If an agreement is not reached, court-referred parties will return to the court process for trial.

Where is the mediation held?

Multi-Door Dispute Resolution Division
Court Building A
515 5th Street, NW, Room 102
202-879-1549

Tips for attending mediation:

Parties should allow 2 hours for a mediation session.

Please do not bring children to mediation. The DC Court day care center in the main courthouse is available from 9:00am – 4:30pm if your child is at least two years of age and able to use the restroom without assistance. The phone number is 202-879-1759.

How to Prepare for Mediation

You can prepare for mediation by doing the following:

- ◆ Complete an intake process with a Dispute Resolution Specialist.
- ◆ Consider the concerns and issues that need to be discussed.
- ◆ Arrive at least 15 minutes before your mediation session is scheduled to begin.
- ◆ CALL if you will be late or must cancel. Unannounced cancellations can lead to termination of the mediation.
- ◆ Be prepared to locate and bring in necessary documentation, including W2's, pay stubs, court orders, etc.

Does mediation work?

Yes! In 2007, 94% of the parties were satisfied with the Mediation Process, 90% were satisfied with the Outcome and 97% were satisfied with the Performance of the Mediators.

Civil Protection Order Cases in the District of Columbia - A Primer

Jurisdiction

- Civil protection order (CPO) cases, also known as intrafamily offenses cases, are governed by D.C. Code §16-1001 et seq. The D.C. Superior Court Domestic Violence Unit rules (SCR-DV) apply to these proceedings.
- The court can enter a civil protection order if it finds good cause to believe that the respondent has committed or is threatening an intrafamily offense as defined by the statute, or stalking, sexual assault or sexual abuse. D.C. Code §§16-1001, 16-2005(c).

An intrafamily offense is defined as:

- (1) an act punishable as a criminal offense that is
- (2) committed or threatened by an offender upon a person with whom the offender has a particular relationship as defined by the statute; e.g., blood, marriage, domestic partnership, child in common, sharing or having shared a residence, having or having had a romantic, dating or sexual relationship

D.C. Code §§16-1001, 16-1003. (Note that stalking, sexual assault or sexual abuse do not require a relationship.)

- The court can enter a temporary protection order ex parte (without notice to the respondent) for an initial period not to exceed 14 days if it finds that the safety or welfare of a family member is immediately endangered by the respondent. D.C. Code §16-1004; SCR-DV 7A. A hearing is held on the TPO request on the same day it is filed. TPOs are valid and effective when issued but if the order was issued in the respondent's absence, the respondent cannot be held in contempt without proper service of the order upon the respondent. SCR-DV 11(c). TPOs can be extended beyond the initial 14-day period as provided by the statute and rules.
- The statute addresses when minors can file for CPOs on her/his own behalf, and also addresses issues relating to minor respondents.

Relief

- A CPO can be entered for a period up to one year. D.C. Code §16-1005(d).
- The relief that can be ordered in a CPO is set forth in D.C. Code §16-1005(c).
 - CPOs can direct the respondent to refrain from the conduct committed or threatened, and “to keep the peace” towards the family member. CPOs commonly provide that the respondent is to refrain from assaulting, threatening, harassing or physically abusing the petitioner.
 - Requests for stay-away orders (from the person, home, workplace, school, etc.) are routinely granted. A CPO can also include a no-contact provision (including by phone, letter or through third parties) and, under certain circumstances, a move-out provision directing the respondent to move out of the residence.
 - The court can require the respondent to participate in counseling.
- The court can award temporary custody (and visitation) of children. D.C. Code §§ 16-1005(c)(6), (c-1). The court can also award child support. Powell v. Powell, 547 A.2d 973 (D.C. 1988).

Procedure

- Pleadings are filed through the Domestic Violence Unit Clerk’s Office, Room 4510. The clerk’s office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Pro se litigants can be assisted by the Domestic Violence Intake Center (D.C. SAFE) located in Room 4550. CPOs can also be filed at United Medical Center (formerly Greater Southeast Community Hospital) and there is also an emergency after-hours procedure coordinated by D.C. SAFE and the 7th District of the Metropolitan Police Department
- CPO cases are heard by judges sitting in the Domestic Violence Unit of D.C. Superior Court.
- There are court forms available in the clerk’s office for many commonly filed CPO pleadings.
- CPOs are initiated by the filing of a petition. SCR-DV 2. There are no filing fees.
- When the petition is filed, the clerk will issue a Notice of Hearing and Order Directing Appearance (NOHODA) requiring the respondent to appear at a date and time certain for the hearing on the petition. The hearing date is set at the time of filing. If no temporary protection order is requested, the hearing will usually be scheduled within two to four weeks (usually two weeks unless otherwise requested). If a TPO is issued, the CPO hearing will be scheduled within 14 days of the TPO hearing (usually the 14th day).

- TPOs are heard based on oral motion on the day that the CPO petition is filed.
 - They can be and routinely are heard ex parte, without notice to the respondent. SCR-DV 7A.
- Service of process is governed by SCR-DV 3. The petitioner is responsible for effecting service; however, upon request at the time of filing (or in court), the D.C. police department will attempt to effect service of process on the respondent. That request should be made to the clerk's office or the judge.

If the respondent does not appear at the hearing after proper service of the NOHODA, the court can issue a bench warrant. SCR-DV 5.

- A CPO can be entered if, after a hearing, the court finds that there is good cause to believe that the respondent has committed or is threatening an intrafamily offense. D.C. Code §16-1005(c).

A CPO can be entered without the respondent present. Although the respondent is in default, the petitioner will typically be required to present evidence that an intra-family offense has been committed (most commonly the petitioner's own testimony). See SCR-DV 5(c) and (d), 11(c). CPOs and TPOs are valid and effective when issued but if the order was issued in the respondent's absence, the respondent cannot be held in contempt without proper service of the order upon the respondent. SCR-DV 11(c).

CPO cases are frequently settled by the entry of a consent order "without admissions." In other words, the respondent consents to the entry of a negotiated CPO without admitting that an intrafamily offense was committed. There are attorney-negotiators employed by the court who, on the day of the hearing, will ask the parties if they would like the attorney-negotiator's assistance with regard to exploring a mutually agreed-upon resolution, which is typically a CPO by consent without admissions. The attorney-negotiator will communicate with each party separately and the parties will not have to communicate directly with each other.

Modification and extension

- Upon motion and for good cause shown, CPOs can be modified. D.C. Code §16-1005(d).
- CPOs can be extended upon motion and for good cause shown. D.C. Code §16-1005(d); Cruz-Foster v. Foster, 597 A.2d 927 (D.C. 1991).

Enforcement

- Violation of any temporary or permanent order issued under the CPO statute is punishable as criminal contempt. D.C. Code §16-1005(f); Mabry v. Demery, 707 A.2d 49 (D.C. 1998). See also D.C. Code §11-944; SCR-DV 12.
- Certain provisions of CPOs may be enforceable by means of civil contempt (e.g. custody and visitation).
- Criminal contempt proceedings can be requested by the filing of a motion by the petitioner. However, only the government (the U.S. Attorney's Office or the Office of the D.C. Attorney General) (or a court-appointed independent prosecutor) can actually initiate criminal contempt proceedings. In re Jackson, 51 A.3d 529 (D.C. 2012).

Custody and visitation

- The court can award temporary custody and visitation of children in a CPO case. D.C. Code §§ 16-1005(c)(6), (7).¹ The court can also award child support. Powell v. Powell, 547 A.2d 973 (D.C. 1988).
- D.C. Code §16-1005(c-1) provides:

For the purposes of subsection (c)(6) and (7) of this section, if the judicial officer finds by a preponderance of evidence that a contestant for custody has committed an intrafamily offense, any determination that custody or visitation is to be granted to the abusive parent shall be supported by a written statement by the judicial officer specifying factors and findings which support that determination. In determining visitation arrangements, if the judicial officer finds that an intrafamily offense has occurred, the judicial officer shall only award visitation if the judicial officer finds that the child and custodial parent can be adequately protected from harm inflicted by the other party. The party found to have committed an intrafamily offense has the burden of proving that visitation will not endanger the child or significantly impair the child's emotional development.

See also D.C. Code §16-914.

- Although judges typically resolve custody requests at the time the petition is adjudicated, upon request of a party or sua sponte, a judge may decide to “bifurcate” the CPO proceeding, first resolving the merits of whether an intrafamily offense was committed and then setting a separate hearing on custody issues.
- The court will entertain requests for supervised visitation. The court has a supervised visitation center located in Court Building A, 515 5th Street, N.W., http://www.dccourts.gov/internet/public/aud_dvu/visitation.jsf

The court will also entertain requests that pick-up or drop-off for visitation take place through a third party or at a specified location other than the parties’ homes (the Supervised Visitation Center can be used for this purpose).

Consolidation with related cases

- When there is a finding of an intrafamily offense, SCR-DV 2 provides that all divorce, custody, paternity and child support cases shall be consolidated and heard in the Domestic Violence Unit. SCR-DV 2 also specifies that a judge in the Domestic Violence Unit may also certify a matter to another appropriate division of the court for a trial or hearing under certain circumstances. In practice, cases are not automatically consolidated; but a party may request consolidation. When cases are consolidated, they are more typically heard by the Family Court judge rather than the Domestic Violence Unit judge.

Service in Custody Cases

D.C. Code §16-4602.5, D.C. Code §16-914(b), and D.C. Code §16-83 address who must be given notice of a custody proceeding.

Each defendant must be served with a summons and a copy of the complaint. At the time the complaint is filed, the clerk will issue a summons for each defendant. The plaintiff is responsible for effecting service. Service is governed by SCR-Dom.Rel. 4.

Service of Complaint

Methods of service: See SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(d)

- Personal delivery to the defendant by any person over the age of 18 who is not a party to the action, or by leaving the summons and complaint at the defendant's dwelling house or usual place of abode with a person of suitable age and discretion who lives at the home.
- Certified mail with return receipt signed by the defendant or a person of suitable age and discretion living at the individual's dwelling house or usual place of abode.
 - NOTE: Although service by certified mail is permissible according to the Domestic Relations Rules, the court may still insist that the movant also attempt to serve the defendant in person. This is often the court's preference when the defendant is known to live locally.

Time period for service: See SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(l).

- Within 60 days of the filing of the complaint; may be extended for one additional 60 day period by the clerk (at the Central Intake Center), then may be extended by filing a motion for additional time.

Proof of service: an affidavit of service must be filed. See SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(c)(1) and (2)

- If personally served, the affidavit must be signed by the process server
- If mailed, the affidavit should be signed by whoever did the mailing (usually the attorney or pro se party) with signed return receipt attached
 - NOTE: The signed return receipt is often in the form of a “green card.” However, signatures captured electronically can be used

Long-arm Jurisdiction

Personal jurisdiction over and service on an individual outside of the District:

See D.C. Code §§ 13-423, -424; 13-431 et seq.

- DC may have personal jurisdiction over a person based upon that person’s conduct. Jurisdiction over nonresidents established solely by conduct is limited to claims specifically arising from those acts. D.C. Code § 13-423(b).
- The court may have personal jurisdiction if the custody claim arises about of a marital or parent and child relationship in the District of Columbia, but there are several qualifications that must be met. See D.C. Code § 13-423(a)(7). For claims arising from the parent/child relationship, (1) the plaintiff must reside in DC when the suit is filed; (2) the nonresident must be personally served with process; and (3) one of the following must be true: (i) the child was conceived in DC and the nonresident is the parent or alleged parent of the child; (ii) the child resides in DC because or with permission of the nonresident parent; or (iii) the nonresident parent has previously resided with the child in DC. D.C. Code § 13-423(a)(7).
- In addition to these criteria, “the court may exercise personal jurisdiction if there is any basis consistent with the United States Constitution for the exercise of personal jurisdiction.” D.C. Code § 13-423(a)(7)(E). Any method of service must also comport with the Due Process Clause. See, e.g., Buesgens v. Brown, 2008, 567 F.Supp.2d 26 (D.D.C. 2008); Banks v. Lappin, 539 F.Supp.2d 228, 238 (D.D.C 2008).

Service for Long-arm Jurisdiction: See D.C. Code § 13-424

If the court has personal jurisdiction, parties may be served outside of DC. Generally, service can be made in the following ways:

- By personal delivery in the manner prescribed for service within DC;
- In the manner prescribed by the law of the place where service is made;
- By any form of mail addressed to the person to be served and requiring a signed receipt;
- As directed by the foreign authority in response to a letter rogatory. D.C. Code § 13-431(a).

Proof of service may be made by affidavit in the appropriate method under DC law or according to the law of the place where service was made (but proof of service must include a signed receipt for service by mailing, regardless of the other state's requirements). D.C. Code § 13-431(b). See also D.C. Code § 13-337 (personal service); D.C. Code § 13-336 (service by publication); D.C. Code § 16-4601.07(a) (notice requirements may comport with DC law or the law of the state where served); D.C. Code § 16-4601.07(b) (same, proof of service).

What if the parties cannot be found?

The Superior Court Domestic Relations judges interpret the constructive service statutes and court rules to mean that posting is not available in custody matters. See D.C. Code § 13-336 et seq.; D.C. Code § 13-340(a); SCR-Dom.Rel. 4(f), (g). Those judges are ordering publication at a cost even when clients have been granted In Forma Pauperis (IFP) status and therefore do not have to pay court filing fees. Typically, in a case with domestic parties, the fee for publication is approximately $110.00. If this issue arises in your case, please contact a mentor at Children's Law Center. Children's Law Center is working with the court and the city council to amend the constructive service statute to allow for posting and is hopeful that the statute will be amended in early 2016.

Plaintiff must file a motion requesting approval for constructive service. The motion must be supported by an affidavit concerning efforts made to locate the party. See Cruz v. Sarmiento, 737 A.2d 1021 (D.C. 1999); Bearstop v. Bearstop, 377 A.2d 405 (D.C. 1977). Such efforts are sometimes called a “diligent search.”

- NOTE: The statute appears to require non-residence of the defendant or absence from the jurisdiction for at least six months as a prerequisite to publication/posting. However, the court often draws the inference of non-residence or absence from the inability to locate the defendant after a diligent search.

Diligent Search

The law is not specific regarding what must be done to satisfy a diligent search. The judge will usually want to see “generic” efforts (e.g., checking last known addresses, telephone directories, criminal court case records, D.C. Jail, and the Federal Bureau of Prisons) and also any case-specific efforts that can be made (e.g., checking with known family members or former employees). DC Bar has a form for completing the motion, along with a worksheet to demonstrate attempts made to serve the party: http://www.lawhelp.org/files/7C92C43F-9283-A7E0-5931-E57134E903FB/attachments/959918D5-DB2B-4F1B-A70A160C074BB8B/service_of_process_motion_to_serve_by_publication_or_postingsept2011.pdf

To demonstrate to the court that a serious effort has been made to find the party, the movant must conduct a diligent search to locate the party. Be sure to keep a detailed list of all efforts that includes the date, the search performed, and the name(s) and contact information of any person(s) contacted or spoken to in the course of the investigation.

- NOTE: It is often a good idea for someone other than the lawyer on the case to perform the searches or attempts to serve. In the event the search yields the individual, service must be performed by a person over the age of 18 who is not a party to the action.

The following is a checklist for a person performing a diligent search in a custody case:

1. Call the last known phone number.
2. Visit the last known address.
3. Complete a Google search on the individual and his/her last known address.
4. Contact the last known employment.
5. Contact any known family members.
6. Check yellowpages.com, whitepages.com, yellowbook.com, switchboard.com, 411.com and other directory services.
7. Check social networking sites like Twitter and Facebook.
8. Conduct a criminal and civil records check in D.C., Maryland, and Virginia.
 - ◆ Search D.C. court records here: <http://www.dccourts.gov/internet/CCO.jsf>
 - ◆ Search Maryland court records on Maryland Judiciary website: <http://casesearch.courts.state.md.us/inquiry/inquiry-index.jsp>.
 - ◆ Search court records of nearby Virginia Districts on Virginia's Judicial System website <http://courts.state.va.us/>. The search should include "all" (current and archived) data for neighboring counties such as Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax City, Fairfax County, Falls Church Combined, Loudoun and Prince William. The website for information on a case in Circuit Court is <http://wasdmz2.courts.state.va.us/CJISWeb/circuit.jsp>.
9. Send a copy of the complaint via certified mail return receipt requested to all last known addresses.
10. Check inmate locator(s) both at a local and at a federal level. Local jurisdictions, generally speaking, have an online site through their department of corrections. Persons incarcerated long-term through the DC court system are incarcerated in the federal system. The Federal Bureau of Prisons has an inmate locator service available here: <http://www.bop.gov>.
 - ◆ Also check DC Vinelink to see if someone is locked up prior to sentencing: <https://www.vinelink.com/vinelink/siteInfoAction.do?siteId=9900>

11. Call hospitals. Below is a non-exhaustive list of local D.C. hospitals:

- ◆ Georgetown University Hospital: 202-444-2000
- ◆ GW University Hospital: 202-715-4000
- ◆ Howard University Hospital: 202-865-6100
- ◆ National Rehabilitation Hospital: 202-877-1000
- ◆ Providence Hospital: 202-269-7000
- ◆ Sibley Memorial Hospital: 202-537-4000
- ◆ Washington Hospital Center: 202-877-7000
- ◆ Greater Southeast Community Hospital: 202-574-6000
- ◆ Hadley Memorial Hospital: 202-574-5700

12. Call shelters. When calling, keep in mind that some shelters are only open during the evening as they only provide shelter on an overnight basis, thus you may need to call at varying times. Additionally, if the shelter will not disclose any information then you should make a note of that. The website Shelter Listings, <http://www.shelterlistings.org/city/washington-dc.html>, offers information on local area shelters. The following is a non-exhaustive list of local area shelters:
