

Future Generations Circle

This year marks Judith Sandalow's 25th anniversary as Children's Law Center's CEO. To recognize her exceptional leadership and ensure Children's Law Center will endure for another 25 years, we are focusing on reinvigorating our legacy society with a new name: the Future Generations Circle.

Those who've met Judith know she is devoted to her family. They also know she will unfailingly steer the conversation to Children's Law Center's latest efforts to provide DC children with a strong foundation of family, health and education.

Those who spend even more time with Judith know she is extremely proud of building an organization that will endure beyond her tenure.

The Future Generations Circle builds on Judith's work to provide a sustainable future for Children's Law Center and the thousands of children and families whose lives it transforms.

To honor Judith's 25th anniversary, we aim to secure 25 new commitments to the Future Generations Circle this year.

All Circle members receive benefits, including:

- Priority invitations to events throughout the year
- Special receptions for Future Generations Circle members
- Recognition in online promotions and Children's Law Center publications (if desired)

When I listen to my granddaughter, I hear echoes of my mother's wisdom; and I see my own parenting reflected in how my son shows up as her father. One tangible moment is when my granddaughter was anxious about starting first grade, she wore my mother's 5K medal to 'give her courage.'”

Judith Sandalow, CEO

Ways to Give

Legacy giving, often called planned giving, comes in many forms. Commitments to the Future Generations Circle can include:

- A bequest as part of your will or trust
- A beneficiary designation as part of your retirement plan or life insurance policy
- A retained life estate
- An IRA charitable rollover (for individuals 70½+)
- Appreciated securities, including stocks or bonds
- A Donor Advised Fund (DAF)

We encourage you to discuss these options with an attorney, certified public accountant or other qualified financial consultant.

Everyone has a legacy: What will you leave for future generations?
